PLAYMATE ATTEMPTS RESCUE

Malden Boy Drowned and Companion Almost Loses Life Trying to Save Him

One Malden boy was drowned today and another narrowly escaped death in an effort to save his chum's life, following a frolic on a raft in Swain's Pond. The drowned boy was Charles W. Greenlaw, thirteen, son of Charles H. Greenlaw, No. 152 Lebanon street, Malden.

The other boy is George Robinson, thirteen, of Cliff street, Malden.

The Greenlaw boy, who did not know how to swim, fell into the water. His friend leaped in after him, but was seized with such a strangle hold that he was obliged to extricate himself and barely managed to get back to the raft. His body was covered with bruises, testifying to the desperation of the drowning boy's grasp.

Police of Malden and Melrose grappled for half an hour and recovered the body.

The Greenlaw boy was born in Chelsea. He is survived by his parents, three brothers and two sisters.

DISABLED TRANSPORT TOWED TO BOSTON

The U. S. transport Edward Lukenbach, which was disabled at sea a week ago, when 600 miles east of Boston Light on her way from Norfolk, Va., to Brest for troops, arrived outside Boston harbor at 6 a. m. today in tow of the coast guard cutter Ossipee, the first of the coast fleet to reach the transport after she flashed the S. O. S.

The Ossipee went to the aid of the Luckenbach from Portland, Me. She found the transport helpless with main journal and port tail shaft broken. Owing to a dense fog both ships were forced to anchor outside the harbor. The Luckenbach will be repaired in Boston and proceed on her voyage to France.

REPORT GERMAN SPIES THRIVING IN POLAND

Warsaw, July 21.—German espionage is reported to be thriving throughout Poland. These "ads" are said to have been a favorite medium for German spies.

PRESIDENT IS ILL AFTER SEA TRIP

Ordered to Bed by His Physician; Condition, However, Not Serious

Washington, July 21.—President Wilson, immediately upon his return today from a week-end cruise on the Mayflower, was ordered to bed by his personal physician, Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, who said the President was suffering from an attack of dysentery.

Admiral Grayson stated that the President's condition was not at all serious, but that he would take no chances and would keep him in bed until he had fully recovered. He hoped, he said, to have the President up and about in a day or two, although he could not say positively when it would be. The President is understood to have been anxious to keep the appointments he had made for the day, but Admiral Grayson persuaded him to postpone them.

When the President left Saturday night for his cruise on the Mayflower, he was slightly [illegible] from an attack of indigestion and the cruise failed to benefit him.

The President's engagement today called for meetings with Senators Edge of New Jersey, Norris of Nebraska, Calder of New York and Cummins of Iowa, in addition to Thomas Nelson Page, ambassador to Italy, who was scheduled to tender his resignation.

MAN HURT, WOMAN DYING

Boston Broker's Auto Hits Pole; Companion Unknown to Him, He Says

An unidentified woman was mortally injured and Edward T. Larkin, a Boston broker, and member of the Algonquin Club, sustained a broken leg and many bruises when the machine in which they were riding was wrecked on the Lynnfield road, early today.

Larkin, who lives at No. 11 Netherlands road, Brookline, told the police that the woman was a stranger whom he was giving a ride from the Wakefield railroad station to Boston.

The broker said that he left the Algonquin Club at 1 a. m. and drove to the North Shore in his high-powered roadster. On the return trip he said he saw a woman standing at the Wakefield station apparently waiting for a train. The broker said he asked her if she was bound for Boston, and when she replied that she was, he offered to bring her by way of Lynn.

The woman, who was about thirty-five years old and attractive, entered the machine, according to Larkin's story, and they started for Boston. At a curve on the Lynnfield road the roadster skidded, smashed through a fence and brought up against a telegraph pole, which was broken off. The pole came down just as the woman passenger was thrown out and wedged her against the side of the machine.

The police were notified and hurried an ambulance to the scene. Meantime, William Sparks, driver of the Lynnfield County bus, came along with his machine filled with passengers. He promptly ordered them out, and, placing the injured woman, who was unconscious, in the bus, took her to the Lynn Hospital. Larkin was later taken to the same hospital in the ambulance.

The woman was found to have sustained internal injuries and was bleeding from the mouth and ears. Larkins suffered a compound fracture of the right leg with abrasions of the left leg. Little hope was held out for the woman's recovery. The automobile was practically demolished.

Concord, July 21.—A distinguished service cross and citation for bravery has been awarded to Private Edmund J. Coolidge of this town, who served overseas with the Headquarters Company of the 101st Infantry, Yankee Division.

The citation was awarded for "extraordinary heroism in action near Beline Bois, France, October 23, 1918. He left shelter and exposed himself to intense machine gun fire when he saw a soldier lying wounded in advance of our lines. He reached the wounded man, despite the enemy fire, and dragged him to a place of safety."

PUBLIC IS URGED TO RIDE

Increased Elevated Fare Is Improbable, but State Must Bear Deficit

What is in effect a plea for public patronage of the Elevated was made today by Trustee Samuel L. Powers, following the settlement of the strike by the award of the local board of arbitration.

Mr. Powers declared that if the road carried as many passengers under 10-cent fares as it did under 5 cents the increase in wages would be taken care of.

He said that he did not believe there would be an increase in fares, but if there were a deficit it would have to be made up by the State.

Other developments today were:

1.—Total increase in wages will mean approximately $2,500,000 a year, according to Trustee Powers.

2.—Yesterday's award affected 5,100 blue uniformed men. The other 2,700 will be considered later.

3.—Letter from Joint Chairman William Howard Taft to Mr. Powers denounced the carmen as having "violated the rules of the War Labor Board."

President J. Henry Neal of the road figured that the additional cost of the wage award to the blue uniformed men alone would be about $1,500,000.

ALLEGED WIFE SLAYER'S CASE SET FOR TOMORROW

The hearing in the case of Frank H. Steves, automobile dealer and former manager of the hotels Oxford and Olympia, accused of murdering his wife, Dorothy, by shooting, in their apartment, No. 3 Concord square, South End, was continued until tomorrow by Judge Murray in the Municipal Court this morning. Attorney John P. Feeney, counsel for Steves, asked that the case be deferred to await the report of Medical Examiner Leary. Mrs. Steves was found on a couch with a 22-calibre revolver by her side. Her husband was the first to discover her. He claims they had quarrreled earlier in the day and insists that she committed suicide. They had been married a year.

URGE SUNDAY TRAINS ON SAUGUS BRANCH

A move to petition the Boston & Maine Railroad to make a permanent Sunday schedule on the Saugus branch has been commenced in Malden, when, for the first time in many years, residents served by the branch had Sunday railroad service. Trains were run hourly as a result of the "L" strike.

Residents of Everett, West Everett, Malden, Maplewood, Linden and Cliftondale patronized the trains heavily and steps were immediately taken to commence the circulation of a petition seeking to have trains on the branch each Sunday, as was formerly the case.

GUILFOYLE TO SEEK SENATORIAL HONORS

Worcester, July 21.—William J. Guilfoyle, president of the Central Labor Union, today announced his candidacy for the State senatorship from the Second Worcester District this Fall. The place is now filled by Senator Clarence W. Hobbs, who is not expected to seek renomination. Mr. Guilfoyle will run on the Democratic ticket.

'L' Carmen May Be Put Under State Control

Legislation that will put Elevated carmen, like policemen and firemen, under State control, to the end that the recent Elevated strike with its untold inconvenience to the public can never be repeated, will be recommended by one of the trustees.

So strongly do the trustees feel that the public should be protected against any recurrence of the strike, and that the interests of the State and city should be safeguarded, that a drastic plan is under consideration for submission to the public.

SEEK TO EQUAL AWARD MADE L CARMEN

Providence, July 21.—Encouraged by the success of the Boston street carmen in obtaining 60 cents an hour, Rhode Island's 2,700 striking carmen today were showing a disposition to hold out for a like settlement here, and disregard the offer of 55 cents.

The executive board of the carmen's union went into conference with representatives of the receivers on the wage question, but the bulletins coming out of the conference room were not encouraging. The tie-up of transportation is still complete.

Federal and local police are today beginning a crusade against the jitney drivers who have come to the relief of the public. Officials at the local office of the Internal Revenue Bureau are considering taxing the jitney owners $10 before allowing them to ply their trade. The police are preparing stricter supervision of automobile traffic.

READY FOR FARE RAISE.

Because of the fact that the road is in the process or reorganization, heretofore the city fathers have turned a deaf ear to anything that intimated the necessity of boosting the fares. They believe that if a fare

EDMUND K. STALLO WEDS A THIRD TIME

New York, July 21.—The marriage of Edmund K. Stallo, father of Princess Francesco Rospigliosi and Princess Michel Murat, to Mrs. Clarissa Cook, a widow of Salt Lake City, takes place today. Mr. Stallo gave his age as fifty-five years. He is a retired banker and was for years the executor of the estate of his daughters, to whom a fortune reported at one time to have been $10,000,000 each, had been left by the late Alexander McDonald, their grandfather. Mrs. Cook said she was thirty-three years old. This is Mr. Stallo's third marriage.

BELMONT SALESMAN DIES IN AMBULANCE

Frank E. Loring, fifty-five, married, of No. 7 Oak avenue, Belmont, employed as a salesman by the National Biscuit Company of Cambridge, fell unconscious upon the sidewalk at Washington and School streets, Roxbury, shortly before noon today. He was taken to the City Hospital in the police ambulance and died on the way.

BANDITS LOOT U. S. COMPANY OFFICE

Washington, July 21.—Fresh Mexican outrages against American citizens in the Tampico district were reported here today, almost before the excitement caused by the July 6 "incident" had a chance to subside.

Hard on the heels of the Tamesi River outbreak, in which American sailors were robbed and their colors dishonored, came word today to the State Department that bandits at Puerto Lobos had attacked American employes of the Atlantic Refining Company and looted the offices of $10,000.

The effect of the news was startling, in view of recent developments. The departure of Major-General Joseph Dickman to take command of all American border troops and the reporting out by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee of a bill calling on the State Department for full information concerning American claims against the Mexican government indicated the serious view taken of the situation in official circles.

Friends of the Carranza government here are much alarmed by the depth of feeling against him. The happenings in the Tampico district are pointed to by the interventionists as evidence that the nominal President of the Mexican republic has power only in restricted areas, and that his government a government in name only.

CONGRESS UP IN ARMS.

Congress is up in arms, both over the affronts offered American seamen and other citizens and the delay in making public the fact that such affronts were being offered. The Navy Department is criticized on the ground that it held up news of the July 6 incident. Secretary Daniels' defence is that the report was buried in the files and he did not hear of it until yesterday.

A Senate resolution, which was offered by Senator King of Utah today, is decided in tone and demands that the State Department come out in the open with information concerning American claims, as well as with word of what is being done to halt outrages against American life and honor.

The resolution is believed to be the beginning of a concerted drive to force the administration to announce

An effort by Corporation Counsel Alexander Whiteside to secure the consent of Attorney-General Attwill to the payment of $2,500,000 to the Boston Elevated out of the money borrowed by the State to meet the "L" deficit met with failure today.

STATE MUST MEET ANY FURTHER DEFICIT OF BOSTON ELEVATED ROAD

L TRUSTEE POWERS PLEADS FOR PUBLIC PATRONAGE

It has not been determined how this extra cost will be made up. The strike cost the road $250,000, and the men lost $160,000 in wages, a total of $410,000.

The road continued to lose money today, as for a number of reasons the public utilized trains, motor vehicles and other means of transportation, while many walked.

BOYCOTT CONTINUED.

A large number of commuters wished to use the strip tickets; others were uncertain whether or not trolley service actually had been resumed, while others declared that they would continue to boycott the road, because of existing conditions.

President Neal stated that the fare probably would remain at ten cents.

The railroads continued to operate their extra service schedules today, although the officials declared they expected a falling off in patronage in a day or two.

General Manager Emmons of the Elevated reported shortly after 9 o'clock that the service was normal and all the men back at work.

A statement will be issued later in the day by the trustees, it was announced, which it is expected will have some bearing on the present condition of the road and the question of fares.

JUSTIFY 10-CENT FARE.

With the settling of the strike now an incident of history, public interest in the local street car situation is today focussed on the significant joint statement by James H. Vahey, counsel for the strikers, and Henry B. Endicott of the Board of Arbitration, that the ten-cent fare is warranted and justified by the present condition of the affairs of the company.

"We do not believe that the riding public has any right to expect to be transported for less than the present fare," is the unqualified statement of these two men who played the star roles in the settling of the strike that has tied up Boston since Thursday last.

The four-day suspension caused by the walkout of 7,800 employes had completely paralyzed the system, and the men, although failing in their demand for 73½ cents an hour and an eight-hour day, and returned to work enthusiastically under what were described as "the best working conditions of any street car men in the world."

The new sliding scale adopted ranges from forty-seven to sixty-two cents an hour, the maximum wage to be attained by all at the end of a year and to continue thereafter, while there will be an increase for every Elevated employe during the first three months of service under the new agreement, an additional increase during the nine months following and a substantial increase to continue thereafter.

Under the scale existing at the time of the strike motormen and conductors on the surface lines were paid 48 cents an hour but under the agreement adopted they will ultimately receive 60 cents.

On the rapid transit lines (the subway and elevated) motormen formerly receiving 50 cents an hour will receive 62 cents; guards who were paid 46 cents will earn 55½ cents; and brakemen, formerly paid 42 cents an hour, will receive 53½ cents.

Taft Declares Elevated Employes Violated the Rules of War Labor Board

The following letter was received today by Samuel L. Powers, one of the five public trustees of the Boston Elevated, from former President William H. Taft, one of the joint chairmen of the National War Labor Board:

"Pointe-a-Pic,
"P. Q., Canada, July 18, 1919.

"My dear Mr. Powers: I have had a good many telegrams from Boston in reference to the Boston Elevated case. I do not feel the same responsibility about it as if I had heard the case, for the reason that the matter was heard before the full board and was referred to Manly and me when I was on a two weeks' trip in the West, and I did not see Manly or hear of the matter until the 5th of July, when I met Manly and Ogburn in Chicago.

"The Boston Elevated case was not then ready for submission because I had none of the evidence before me and had not the argument. We agreed to meet after record of the evidence and the argument were all transcribed, so that I could learn the issue and help decide the case in Chicago on the first of August. The terms of the submission provided for a retroactive order, so that full justice could be done if there was to be an increase in the rates.

"Mr. Manly had important business in California which was calling him there, and he went there with the purpose of returning and meeting me in Chicago on August 1 to settle the Boston Elevated matter, as well as four or five other street railway cases which were left over and assigned to us for final decision. When, therefore, the men met in their union and demanded an immediate hearing and decision with the threat of an immediate strike, it was utterly impossible for the joint chairmen to meet until the time already fixed, because Mr. Manly, I suppose, is now in California, and I was in Canada, from where it was impossible for me to reach Boston before the time fixed for the strike.

"In taking such action as they did the men violated the rules of the board, of which I am joint chairman; and I would have no authority to go ahead either with Mr. Manly or his substitute, Mr. Black of New York, with the men out.

"This letter is in response to your telegram of the 16th, which did not come to me here until this morning. Telegraphic communication through a French-Canadian woman not familiar with English and not closely united with the lines of the United States, is slow, difficult and inaccurate.

"You are at liberty, if you desire, to publish this letter.

"Sincerely yours,
"W. H. TAFT."

Congressman Fuller Disconsolate Over Loss of "Nero"

If the reader doesn't think it's a misfortune to lose a nice St. Bernard pet, let him "ask the man who owns one."

Since Nero, Congressman Alvan T. Fuller's huge thoroughbred, bounded out of the Fuller domicile in Malden last Thursday and got himself lost, strayed or stolen, the Congressman has been disconsolate, with little appetite for duties of state or anything else. Wherefore, he has offered a liberal reward for the return of the beast to No. 1,033 Commonwealth avenue.

Nero is three years old and is built along the lines of one of his master's auto trucks. He has a friendly habit by which he can easily be identified, of hurling his massive frame playfully at all who call him by name. If you see a big, handsome, distraught-looking St. Bernard wandering about, holler "Come, Nero," leaving written instructions in your pocket for the nurse to notify Brighton 800 in case it really is the Fuller pup.

Jitney Busses Disappear and City Traffic Moves With Greater Speed

With the resumption of trolley car service today, the jitney bus reverted to its usual occupation. Bostonians and suburbanites no longer were seen perched upon boxes and chairs of the emergency vehicles. And traffic moved with greater speed, eliminating the congestion, so conspicuous for the last few days.

Shoppers were back on the job, touring the downtown district. Ex-buses were moving furniture or merchandise, and not blocking traffic while lined up against the curbs in quest of patrons. In particular Park street and South Station showed conditions existing before the strike.

Many people continued the boycott, preferring to "take it easy" in the sweltering sun than pay a dime. Despite this, congestion of the streets was lacking, showing that the movement of trolley cars was a welcome relief to residents of metropolitan Boston who have been hiking it since Thursday morning.

EXTRA TRAINS ON STEAM ROADS STILL RUN

Suburbanites Who Did Not Know Strike Had Ended Are Accommodated

Cessation of the Elevated strike did not change today the schedules put in effect last week by the steam roads. Nearly all the trains added to take care of the surburbanites were running today. The travel, while lighter, was heavy enough to justify the continuance of the schedule for one day at least.

"The same schedule that we had last Friday will be maintained throughout today," said General Passenger Agent Grant of the Boston & Maine. "We decided to do this owing to the fact that many suburbanites would not have the opportunity to learn that the L strike was off before starting to work today.

"Our evening trains will run today on the same schedule as last Friday."

The number of suburban trains to be run after today will be decided at a conference of Boston & Maine officials. It was believed that with the electric lines again in operation a return to schedules existing before the strike would gradually be made.

The additional trains on the Boston & Albany ran without changes early today.

RAILROAD FARE LESS.

Many people during the strike bought commutation tickets, and it is believed that they will continue to use the steam roads at least part of the time for the length of their tickets.

What permanent effect the strike will have on use of the steam roads in the suburbs is one of the things the railroad men are trying to figure out. The railroad fare to most of the suburbs on commutation tickets is less than the Elevated fare of ten cents.

The New Haven road continued to run special trains for commuters during the early rush hours. Five special trains were run to Boston on the Shawmut branch, four from Forest Hills, one from Readville, four from Dorchester, and two extra were run from Boston out to Braintree, to accommodate workers at the Fore River and other plants.

It is not planned to continue the extra New Haven trains after today unless patrons should continue to flock to the road from the Elevated. According to road officials, business already had increased by about 15,000 passengers a day, even before the strike, owing to the increase in Elevated fares. It is now considerably cheaper for commuters to use the trains. If continued business warrants additional service, extra trains will be put on permanently.

NEW B. & A. SCHEDULE.

The Boston & Albany today arranged a new suburban schedule. A special train will leave South Station at 5:23 p. m. on the main line with the first stop at Newton. Successive stops will be at Newtonville, West Newton, Auburndale and Riverside. The Trinity Place stop will be omitted on this train. Other changes are:

5:25 p. m., main line to Riverside, will stop at Allston. Trinity Place stop omitted.

5:15 p. m. and 5:35 p. m. regular main line trains, will stop at all stations between Boston and Riverside.

Changes in schedule for inbound trains follow:

7:12 a. m., extra train will leave Newton, making stops as follows: Faneuil, 7:15; Brighton, 7:18; Allston, 7:21, reaching South Station at 7:24 a. m.

8:12 a. m., extra train from Allston, reaching South Station at 8:24 a. m.

increase is allowed now when the road finally reorganizes the new management will want the same fare rates to prevail.

Now, however, both the Mayor and the City Government are willing to entertain a fare-raising proposition in order to overcome the difficulty between the carmen and the receivers.

An appeal to all automobile owners to assist the district nurses has been made by Miss Winifred L. Fitzpatrick of the Providence District Nurses' Association. There is much sickness in the city and the inability of the nurses to cover their allotted territory, especially to visit the poorer sections of the city, has made the situation serious.

As a result of the decision of the officials to allow automobiles to be used for "jitney" purposes, all streets to the city are crowded with cars of all descriptions. Fancy limousines are carrying the people about while large furniture trucks are equipped with settees and chairs and are filled on every trip.

JITNEYS ALL AROUND.

All the outlying sections have arranged to convey workers to their places of business. Jitneys are run from Oakland Beach, River Point, East Greenwich, Warwick, North Providence, Manton, Scituate, East Providence, Pawtuxet and other towns around the city.

Police officials say that accidents are rare. The traffic laws are enforced to the limit.

Long before the License Commissioners opened their doors a long line of automobile owners were waiting to file petitions to operate jitneys. The usual requirements have been overlooked by the License Commissioners.

Business Agent James H. Coleman of the carmen's union said:

"From every section we have reports that the men feel they have the right argument in this controversy. For weeks we have been trying to get the receivers to pay respectful attention to our appeals.

"We offered to arbitrate or allow the question to be decided by the War Labor Board, and further asked the receivers to submit the question to the court."

Mexican Insult Repeats the 1914 Outrage

The opinion has been expressed at Washington that the holdup of a boatload of American sailors near Tampico on July 6 parallels the arrest of marines in 1914. Points in similarity are evident in comparisons of the two incidents.

On April 9, 1914, the paymaster and a detachment of marines from the United States gunboat Dolphin were arrested by a Mexican officer at Tampico. They were taken from a launch flying the American flag. This outrage led to the occupation of Vera Cruz after the demand of Admiral Mayo that the men be released and a twenty-one gun salute fired by the Mexicans as an apology.	On July 6, 1919, a boatload of American sailors from the U. S. S. Cheyenne were held up in the Temesi River, near Tampico, and the sailors were robbed. This act was committed, according to report, while the motor-sailing launch occupied by the sailors flew the American flag.
In this case the marines were accosted by a detachment of Mexican Federals, under the command of Colonel Hinojosa. The marines were in uniform. They were unarmed. They had been engaged in semi-official work, having put in at the Iturbide Bridge for a supply of gasoline.	The sailors were unarmed when attacked, it being in contravention of existing rules laid down by the Carranza government for the carrying of side arms by members of foreign forces in that district. The men were in fatigue uniform. They were engaged in semi-official business, being on a fishing trip to procure food for their ship's larder.

The right to continue the use of buildings on public parks erected for war purposes was presented to Judge [illegible] in the Superior Court today on a bill brought by citizens of Taunton against members of the park commission, in which the plaintiffs ask that the respondents be enjoined from removing "Victory Cottage" on Taunton Green. U. S. DEMANDS APOLOGY FROM MEXICO

Insult to Flag and Attack on Sailors Stir Up State Department

a definite and vigorous Mexican policy. Little opposition is expected.

Regular soldiers fresh from overseas are discussing the probability of another "border experience." It is noticeable that such rumors are particularly rife among units formerly assigned to patrolling the Texan frontier.

The territory where the outrages against American honor and American seamen were committed is presumably under the control of Carranzistas, for which reason American naval forces are prohibited from carrying sidearms. Men thus disarmed out of courtesy to the existing government were ready victims for the murderous attack to which they were subjected by alleged outlaws.

DICKMAN OFF FOR BORDER.

Shrewd observers are particularly interested in the hurried departure of General Dickman from New York to San Antonio, Tex. He is a veteran of border police duty, and a strategist who has devoted many years of his life to a study of a theoretical "invasion" of Northern Mexico in the event that intervention became necessary.

Neither the State Department nor the Navy Department had an additional report on the situation at a late hour today. If one is received it will immediately be dispatched to the President, who is down the Potomac River on the yacht Mayflower.

Because it is admitted in official quarters that the incident represents the most grave feature of Mexican-American relations in the past year, the State Department is hoping that the matter has already been adjusted by the American naval officers in Mexican waters. If the officers have demanded an apology, and one has been given by the Carranza authorities at Tampico, the matter would largely be settled.

One additional provision, however, would be necessary. It would be the capture and punishment of the bandits who committed the insult and robbery.

The next step of the Department will, therefore, depend on the report of Commander Finney, who is in charge of the U. S. S. Topeka. He is the ranking officer in Tampico waters. It was he who sent in the first report telling of the insult and robbery perpetrated on the crew of a small motor sailing launch of the U. S. S. Cheyenne.

If no redress has been obtained from Mexican authorities the demand for an apology will be made.

There is no attempt to minimize the gravity of the situation as it is presented by the two reports already in the hands of the President. He has before him the report sent by Commander Finney, which reached the Navy Department the day after the outrage, and the report to the State Department, which was received through diplomatic channels.

The President may take some definite action because the flag incident and robbery are the culmination of a recent series of outrages against Americans in territory Carranza has said was under his complete control.

"TWO CHILDREN ARE ENOUGH," SAYS FLEISCHER'S BRIDE-TO-BE

EXPLAINS MARRIAGE IDEALS

"Democracy" in Wedlock Defended by Miss Leslie, Who Is to Marry Preacher

"Yes, we're going to try the democratic marriage, and he is not going to interfere with my personality any more than I am going to interfere with his."

This was the way Miss Mabel Leslie, young woman lawyer, graduate of Boston University Law School, and betrothed of Dr. Charles Fleischer, leader of Sunday Commons, defined her approaching nuptials. Dr. Fleischer described his bride as an "ardent American." Miss Leslie is also ardent in her beliefs and golden in her laughter. But there were questions put, with some hesitation, to the blushing bride-to-be.

WORK VS. CHILDREN.

Ah, this way. "Miss Leslie—ah—um—when you are married to the doctor, you still will go to work each day?"

"I believe in organizing a marriage right; in getting together—the man and the woman—and planning a campaign beforehand," she replied. "Then things, in marriage, will be more orderly and—"

"But, Miss Leslie—sometimes—ah—there are children. Do you think a woman ought to go away from home all day long if there are children?"

"I cannot see how children can be expected to fill all of a woman's life, any more than they fill all of a man's. A woman is a reasoning adult, with adult interests, as well as female interests, I presume. She must not neglect her children, but she must not dwarf her outlook, either. That would be neglecting the children worst of all—to give them a stupid, narrow mother."

"But—Miss Leslie—you know—ah—a little girl of four or five years is pretty tender. With her mother away all day——"

"While the child is very young, the mother should stay at home half of the day with her child and go to work the other half."

TWO CHILDREN ENOUGH.

"But, Miss Leslie—suppose there are—it has happened before, you know—a lot of children?"

"Nobody has any right to have a lot of children these days." The young lady was positive, and most emphatic.

"How many children have people a right to have?"

"Not any more than two, positively. Not one more than two. Two are plenty."

"Some people, however, have not been able to arrange the figure with such mathematical precision. Now you——"

"I am not worrying," replied the young lady. "Neither is the doctor. We shall organize our home right, give each other scope for each other's individuality to flourish, and await the future with confidence."

"But, Miss Leslie, sometimes, when Mrs. Wife is away all day, and too busy on interests not her husband's and her home's—sometimes, The Other Woman gets him."

FEARS NO "OTHER WOMAN."

Miss Leslie, with finality, "no other woman could get the doctor except me. If he has been safe all these years from the other woman, and only just now has succumbed to me, I have faith that he is mine for all time."

"Well, Miss Leslie, how does the democratic woman get the democratic husband, anyway?"

"I won't tell," replied the lady. "I refuse to be interviewed. That is a secret between me and him. And pardon me—please excuse me further. I think—don't you think, that I have said just about—just about, in fact—just about enough?"

"ONE-ARM" LUNCH MEN MAY STRIKE

G. O. P. IN DRIVE AGAINST HIGH LIVING COST

Probe of Conditions In Washington to Extend Over Country, Senator Capper Says

By International News Service.

Washington, July 21.—Progressive Republicans are demanding a party offensive on the high cost of living, Senator Capper of Kansas indicated today.

The problem of the high cost of living, Senator Capper said, "is more important to the people than the League of Nations, and the party in power must take some definite action before the next election."

Opening the offensive on living costs, the District of Columbia Committee of the Senate today began an inquiry into conditions in the city of Washington. It was expected that this probe would expand and before completed would include a wide survey of food prices throughout the entire United States.

"It will not be a local investigation," said Senator Capper, who is devoting almost his entire time to the inquiry. "We are going to try and find out about the spread between the producer and the consumer, and what we learn will be of interest and benefit to the entire nation."

Senator Capper was particularly interested in reports of the Bureau of Markets, which show that while wholesale prices have decreased, retail prices in general have increased. Representatives of the packing interests in Washington were to be called before the committee to testify concerning fixing of prices.

MAY KILL MUCH OF FORD CASE TESTIMONY

Judge to Rule on Hundreds of Pages in Auto Man's Suit Against Newspaper

By International News Service.

Mount Clemens, Mich., July 21.—Upon the decision of Judge Tucker, concerning arguments submitted today, depends the validity of testimony in the Henry Ford-Chicago Tribune $1,000,000 suit which it has taken days to introduce. His decision may strike out testimony that now fills hundreds of pages of the record of the trial.

With the jury absent today, attorneys submitted arguments upon the admissibility of evidence dealing with the preparedness question. Attorney Elliott Stevenson of the Tribune asked the court to eliminate all testimony that bears upon Mr. Ford's actions in 1917 and 1918, contending it is not material. The statements made in the editorial on which the suit is based dealt with Ford's alleged attitude toward military service in 1916.

Judge Tucker said he would take the preparedness question under advisement and rule later.

Attorneys for the Tribune also asked that all records of dealings with Ford's profits on war contracts, which was brought out during the two days Edsel Ford was on the stand, be struck out. Testimony concerning the Ford profit-sharing plan also was attacked by the defence and its elimination asked.

Ford's attorneys retaliated by asking that the testimony of Kirkland Alexander, Detroit advertising man who testified that Ford said that "If Germany had not invaded Belgium, France or England might have," be expunged from the records.

Judge Tucker admonished attorneys today that trial of the case must be expedited, stating that several jurors had told him they must get away by August 1. Arguments and cross-examination, Judge Tucker said, must be curtailed.

Attorney Stevenson, who has been examining Henry Ford for the past week, stated today he expected to finish with the witness by tomorrow night. Ford's attorneys said their cross-examination would not require longer than one day.

The trial began its eleventh week today.

He refused and was sentenced to three months in the House of Correction. Griffin appealed.

DICKEY WORKED FOR HARMONY, HE SAYS

Christian Science Director Tells of His Efforts to Avoid Differences

The desire and anxiety of the late Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, founder of the Christian Science Church, to have in the administration of the various church offices men of the highest character who "could be trusted" was emphasized at the continuation of the Christian Science hearing today. Adam H. Dickey, one of the directors of the church, who have been bitterly at odds with the trustees over various matters of administration, was continued as a witness.

For the most part Director Dickey's testimony related to a conversation he had with Herbert W. Eustace, one of the trustees, on December 22 of last year. Mr. Dickey, who was examined by Edwin A. Krauthoff of counsel for the directors, testified that he told Trustee Eustace that it was his desire and intention to strictly follow out Mrs. Eddy's advice to put trustworthy men in office.

PREDICTED A SPLIT.

Director Dickey said he informed Mr. Eustace in their conversation that the efforts of the trustees would be likely to split the Church into two sections, but Mr. Eustace said to me at that time, the witness continued: "There will be no law suit over the administration of the Christian Science Church. I am not trying to separate the church or to divide it into two sections."

"I told Mr. Eustace at the time that I cared more for the unity and solidarity and success of the church than for anything else in the world," the witness said. "'You and I have our instructions set out for us in the Christian Science Manual,'" Witness Dickey said he remarked to Mr. Eustace.

"'Why, Mr. Dickey, I can assure you there will be no law suit,'" is what Mr. Eustace was quoted by witness as having said.

COULD HAVE SETTLED TROUBLE.

"I told Mr. Eustace that never before had there been any differences in the Christian Science Church," witness Dickey said, "and I said to Mr. Eustace that the whole existing differences could be adjusted according to the manual.

"Mr. Eustace said he was very glad to see that I stood on the church manual. What it specified, he said, must be carried out. He then told me that I could go away on my Christmas vacation, which I was about to do, with a mind assured that there would be no law suit over administration of the affairs of the church, and Mr. Eustace also said there would be no disagreement between directors and trustees."

BRINGS FRENCH BRIDE BACK FROM THE WAR

New Bedford, July 21.—When Francis Philip Fortin arrived at his home at No. 1656 Acushnet avenue, Saturday night, after having served in France for more than a year as a ground mechanic attached to the 376th Aero Squadron, United States Army, he presented to his family the pretty bride he had taken in Paris.

After the armistice was signed, Fortin was appointed interpreter at one of the army headquarters in Paris, and there he met Miss Marguerite Payfagen, a refugee from St. Quentin, who had been engaged in Red Cross activities since the invading Germans had driven her out of her home. They were married about three weeks ago, just before Fortin was ordered home.

After the war of 1870, Dr. Francis Joseph Pommier, young Fortin's grandfather, a soldier of France, came to visit America. While here he lost his heart to an American girl and instead of returning to his native land, married her and settled in this country.

HUMIDITY STILL HIGH: NO RELIEF FOR PRESENT

Boston today entered upon the sixth day of high humidity. And the worst of it is that S. W. Smith, the weather man, will promise no immediate relief. The humidity at 8 and 9 a.m. was 86 per cent. Humid, oppressive conditions prevail in all districts east of the Mississippi River. Showers are promised for New England during the day and Tuesday.

500 AIRPLANES SOLD IN U. S. IN 3 MONTHS

Atlantic City, July 21.—More than 5000 airplanes of the pleasure type could be sold immediately if manufacturers could make deliveries and more than 500 airplanes have been purchased or ordered in the United States during the past three months, according to a statement issued by Henry Woodhouse, vice-president of the Aerial League of America.

Denies Hub Has 14,000 Starved Babies, as Told by Capper

Miss Grace O'Brien of the Boston District Nursing Association said today that United States Senator Arthur Capper's statement that there are 14,000 starved children in Boston was an exaggeration.

"There is a great deal of under-nourishment among children in Boston," said Miss O'Brien, "but I should say such a total as that cited by Senator Capper is incorrect.

"However, there are enough mal-nourished children here to make us anxious. Last year's weighing and measuring of babies sadly showed Boston's babies' deficiencies. As the result of that there are now five nutrition clinics for babies in Boston and there will soon be more.

"Well baby clinics have also received a great impetus as the result of last year's weighing and measuring campaign. Visits to the homes of mal-nourished children are made to educate the parents of the children in the care and feeding of their little ones.

MILK ESSENTIAL.

"We tell them that milk is the great essential for babies. It is unfortunate that the high cost of milk makes parents hesitate about buying enough for their children. But the drive for education must go on. Parents must be educated to stop giving tea and coffee and meat, and to substitute milk and cereal, in fact, anything that milk can be taken with. Parents must learn that milk is as necessary as sugar.

"Hard times plus ignorance are the two reasons for mal-nourishment among Boston infants."

Senator Capper, who hails from Kansas, in discussing the menace of soaring food prices, said investigation showed that thousands of children in Boston were shorter in stature and lighter in weight than they ought to be. He said the League of Nations and the Mexican embroglio were idle issues compared to the high cost of living in the United States.

"All the starved children are not in Europe," added Senator Capper. "There are 14,000 starved children in the capital of Massachusetts."

Correspondence of Senators and Congressmen reveals that unrest is growing in all parts of the country because of soaring prices. The National Consumers' League, representing thousands of housewives throughout the United States, is petitioning Congress for definite action to meet conditions. Passage of the Kenyon-Anderson bill to regulate the packing industry has been suggested as one means of coping with the problem.

DISCUSSES PROFITEERING.

"Two-thirds of my daily mail has to do with profiteering," said Senator Capper. "The problem of prices and profiteering is the big issue—the biggest issue—before Congress. It must be grappled with because it cannot be evaded nor neglected.

"Washington undoubtedly is victimized by profiteers to an extent not equalled in other cities.

"We are told the war price of shoes is soon to advance 25 to 50 cents per pair. Underwear is to be marked up 25 to 35 per cent. Hand-me-down suits of clothes are to sell from $50 to $75. Coal is to be higher.

"When it became necessary that the banks be made safe the government provided bank inspectors and banking laws. Business and industry must be made safe for all our sakes as well as for their own. They must serve, not extort."

SLAYER MAKES 7 CHILDREN FATHERLESS

Jealous, Makowitch Shoots Man to Whose Home His Wife Had Gone

Southbridge, July 21.—Jealousy of the man to whose home his wife had gone, is believed to be why Michael Makowvitch, 41, shot and killed Louis E. Wells, 45, near his residence in the east part of Union, Ct., Sunday evening.

At 5 p. m. Sunday Wells went to the mail box near his home. Makowvitch, who lives a mile from the Wells place, was driving along the road. When about four feet from Wells he drew a rifle and fired. The bullet entered Wells' heart, killing him instantly. Members of the slain man's family witnessed the shooting.

About a week ago, say acquaintances of the two families, Mrs. Makowvitch left her home and went to the Wells residence to live. Wells also is married and besides his widow, seven children survive. There are seven children in the Makowvitch family.

MALDEN PROBES DEATH OF INFANT

Life of Child Could Have Been Saved if Pulmotor Had Arrived in Time, Nurse Says

Complaints against the police department of Malden for the alleged failure to send a pulmotor to the Durfee home, on Reserve street, in time to save Warren Durfee, an infant, who died of suffocation, are to be investigated at a public hearing in the City Council chamber on Wednesday evening.

The child's head was caught between the crib and the mattress. A trained nurse employed at the Durfee home said she could have saved the child's life if the pulmotor had been sent in time. She complains that it did not arrive until thirty-six minutes after she had telephoned, although the police station is less than a mile distant.

Mayor Charles M. Blodgett ordered a public hearing, which was delayed owing to the fact that Police Commissioner Edwin C. Burbank was on his vacation.

Immediately upon Commissioner Burbank's return today he ordered the inquiry for Wednesday evening, sending notice to Mayor Blodgett that he felt it was his duty to conduct the investigation as the entire department was on trial in the absence of a complaint against any person.

There is considerable feeling in Malden over the affair. City Solicitor Harvey L. Boutwell will conduct the hearing.

LINCOLN'S CHAIR ENTERS INTO MARITAL DISPUTE

Springfield, Ill., July 21.—George B. Lloyd owns Abraham Lincoln's old chair, made and presented to the latter by an ardent friend and hunter, a jury in the Circuit Court declares. They settled a dispute between Lloyd and his wife when the latter claimed the chair, fashioned out of elk horns, following a separation. Lincoln gave the prized article to his son, who gave it to Lloyd, and when the Lloyds agreed to disagree in the matter of marital happiness a wrangle over its possession developed. The foregoing court action followed.

TACK MAKERS VOTE TO STRIKE ON THURSDAY

Brockton, July 21.—Unless an agreement is reached with the manufacturers before Thursday, members of the Tack Makers' Union of the United States and Canada will go out on strike on that day to enforce demands for an increase in wages, a 48-hour week and recognition of the union. The men want $1 an hour for the operators of fifteen machines and a sliding scale for those who operate less than this number.

The United Shoe Machinery Company has rejected the demands of the union.

DEITRICK PUTS FREE IRELAND IN PLATFORM

Candidate for Governor Declares Home Rule Very Much America's Business

Former Congressman Frederick S. Deitrick of Cambridge, who has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Governor, states that the third plank of his platform is "Complete independence for Ireland now."

In discussing this issue, Mr. Deitrick said:

"Ireland is an island and has no territorial connection with any other country. She is inhabited by a different people than England. A vast majority of her inhabitants have a different religious belief and different political aspirations than the English.

"She has, by an overwhelming vote of her people, chosen a government of her own by electing a president and legislative body, and this government is prevented from exercising its functions only by the armed forces of England.

IS A WORLD QUESTION.

"The question of Irish freedom is a world question. It is more particularly an American question, and it is absolutely a Massachusetts question. Sir Edward Carson, who recently stated that 'the Irish question was none of America's business,' is mistaken, and he will soon learn that the people of America intend to see that Ireland is recognized as an independent state.

"If need be, America must lock horns with England now to the end that Ireland shall be free. Soft words never freed a people from England—witness our own experience in 1775 and 1812.

"Each year for ten years prior to the present war I told the people of Massachusetts that all Europe was armed to the teeth, that war was impending, and urged the people to cast aside their little navy and little army rules and build up an army and navy of our own.

EXPECTS MORE WAR.

"The League of Nations plan and peace 'settlement' of Europe and Asia make it certain that another world war will soon be upon us. The first battles will probably be upon the sea, and America must have a larger and more powerful navy than any other nation."

The first plank in Deitrick's platform is "State employment for the blind and crippled at livable wages," and the second plank is "Five dollars a day back pay for army and navy men who served in our war with Germany, to be paid by Massachusetts by March 15, 1920, the money for this purpose to be raised by an inheritance and surplus profits tax."

"The five-dollar-a-day-back-pay proposition for army and navy men," said Deitrick, "would be an average of $750 per man."

MRS. SKEELS ABLE TO RECEIVE VISITORS

Lawrence, July 21.—Mrs. Bessie Mae Skeels Lundgren, Dover nurse, who since her acquittal of the murder of Florence W. Gay by poison, has been in a physical condition near to death, is out of danger and may be able to leave her bed by the end of the week.

Since her trial Mrs. Lundgren has eaten little and was sustained only by artificial feeding. This is not necessary now as she is able to take light lunches and liquid foods which she hitherto refused. According to a member of the Lundgren household she appeared much brighter during the past two days. She converses freely and visitors have been allowed to see her in her room.

COL. WATTERSON RAPS LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Veteran Editor Says It Is Scheme to Have U. S. Underwrite Combustions of Europe

Washington, July 21.—Henry Watterson, veteran editor and president of the League for the Preservation of American Independence, has issued a statement declaring that the League of Nations was a scheme to have the United States underwrite the combustions of Europe. Colonel Watterson said:

"The proposed League of Nations is, in my opinion, a scheme to have the United States pull England's chestnuts and the chestnuts of France out of the fire.

"It would have to underwrite the combustions of Europe. The bedrock of the religion of humanity from which it springs is laid in the chimera of racial brotherhood and the chimera of racial brotherhood is laid in the visionary theories of self-exploiting philosophers more learned in books than in life.

"America should stand as at once a refuge of hope and an example of wisdom to the beleaguered of all lands. We are strong enough to make our [illegible] effective to promote the [illegible] and protect the [illegible] and we shall only weaken our moral power and international influence by high sounding verbal [illegible] and one sided foreign alliances that whilst raising many responsibilities put us at universal disadvantage."

Six Foot Snake Is Killed In Dorchester

A snake six feet five inches in length and weighing about five pounds, was killed by Frederick Walder on Charles street, Dorchester, after it had frightened many women and children of the district.

Walder was strolling along Charles street, and his attention was attracted by screams of children seeking refuge on a veranda. He saw the snake in a coiled position, ready to strike.

He found a long stick, crept up behind the snake and hit it on the head, killing it instantly. Walder lives at No. 1,465 Dorchester street.

Claims Wife Refused Him Ice, Keeps Cool on River Bank

Lawrence, July 21.—Michael Nastarsa of No. 352 Chestnut street, this city, was found by the police on the bank of the Spicket River where they say he was apparently preparing to end his life. Nastarsa gave the police one of the most original excuses yet recorded for his action. He said he had suffered from pneumonia and had asked his wife for some ice to keep down his fever. Owing to the cent a pound price of ice his wife told him she could not afford it, not realizing his condition. He was taken to the hospital for treatment after he told the police he was on the river bank to "keep cool."

USE TANKS TO QUELL MOBS IN IRELAND

Policeman Shot in Dublin In Sinn Fein Riots Over Peace Emblems

Dublin, July 21.—Display of the government's peace proclamations precipitated riots and demonstrations all over Ireland, particularly in Dublin, Cork and Limerick. There were many scenes of violence and at Dublin a policeman was shot while attempting to stop a fight between soldiers and civilians here.

At Clonmel the government's peace proclamations were covered with tar, and everywhere signs were displayed reading: "There will be no peace till Ireland is free."

Black flags were displayed in all Sinn Fein controlled towns.

At Cork a crowd of Sinn Feiners attacked police and soldiers. A constable was wounded. There was much street rioting. Virtually all British emblems were destroyed.

At Limerick government troops and police used tanks in quelling riots. Two hundred men attempted to destroy peace flags when police and military interferred.

how does your cigarette begin to taste?

NOTE—This is the severest test to which you can put your cigarette.

NEARLY dinner time. You've been smoking all day. How is your cigarette appetite?

If it is tired and jaded—in other words, unless it's as fresh, crisp and snappy as right after breakfast—you ought to look around for a different brand of cigarettes.

The right brand (when you find it) will let you feel fine and fit and smoke-hungry clear up to bed-time.

It will give you enough of the delicious flavor of Turkish tobacco—but it will be so blended as to off-set the over-richness or heaviness that comes from smoking too much Turkish.

The one cigarette which today seems to be attracting most men who tire of straight Turkish is Fatima (see at left).

As soon as you are ready to look seriously into the cigarette question, put Fatimas to the 6 o'clock test.

WILSON WANTS TO CHOOSE NEW PEACE ENVOY

Asks Senators to Consent to His Naming Man for Reparations Board

By International News Service.

Washington, July 21.—A request from President Wilson that the Foreign Relations Committee speedily consider America nrepresentation on the Reparations Commission, created under the peace treaty, the committee today decided, should be taken up by it tomorrow. Senator Fall of New Mexico will move that the session be open.

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, chairman of the committee, made public the following letter he received from the President on the subject:

LETTER TO LODGE.

"There are some things in connection with the execution of the treaty of peace, which can hardly await the action of the several governments which must act with regard to the ratification of the treaty and the chief of these is the functioning of the reparation commission.

"It is of so much importance to the business interests of the United States, as well as to the nations with which we are associated, that the United States shou ldbe represented on that commission and represented now while the work of the commission is taking shape, that I am taking the liberty of writing to ask if you will not be kind enough to consult the committee on foreign relations with regard to this particular appointment and say to them I would very much appreciate their approval of my appointing provisionally a representative of the United States to act upon the reparation commission."

APPROVED BY WILLIAMS.

Senator Williams, Democrat, of Mississippi, submitted the following resolution:

"Resolved, that he fecognize no jurisdiction in the members of the committee as a committee over the subject matter in its present status, but we think the President has the power to appoint the American commissioner in order to expedite the completion of the details of the proposed treaty."

Senator Harding, Republican, of Ohio, moved as a substitute for the Williams resolution:

"Moved, that the chairman be instructed to reply to the President that in the judgment of the foreign relations committee neither the committee nor the Senate has any authority to take action in respect to any treaty provision before said treaty becomes effective, through ratification."

SUPPORTED BY HITCHCOCK.

Senator Hitchcock, Democratic, of Nebraska, moved as an amendment to Harding's substitute:

"Aafter the word 'ratification add the following:

"And assumes that the President alone can take necessary action to have the United States temporarily represented on any commission of reparation set up by the common action of the nations to act provisionally during the period required to reach treaty ratification."

Senator Knox, Republican, of Pennsylvania, proposed as a substitute to the Harding motion:

"It is the judgment of the committee that until the treaty is ratified no power exists, either in the President or Congress, to execute any provision of the proposed treaty either provisionally or otherwise."

The Williams resolution and the proposed substitutes went over until tomorrow.

AUSTRIA MADE BANKRUPT BY TREATY

Army Reduced to 30,000; All Protests to Clemenceau "Turned Down"

By ROBERT J. PREW,

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, July 21.—With the Austrian treaty virtually disposed of, the final terms having been handed to Dr. Renner of the Austrian peace delegation without ceremony yesterday, belief prevailed in conference circles today that the Bulgarian treaty would be completed this week and presented to Premier Theodorof within ten days.

Austria is expected to signify within the ten days stipulated by Premier Clemenceau her readiness to sign up.

Dr. Renner sent numerous notes to the conference, but Premier Clemenceau, after handing in several replies, finally told him that the treaty itself would constitute the answer to the balance.

Conference experts agree that the treaty leaves Austria absolutely bankrupt and that the allies will have to take up the task themselves of restoring her economically and financially.

The biggest questions now outstanding are:

1. The settlement of Turkey's new frontiers and the status of that nation;
2. The Adriatic problem.

MAIN POINTS OF TREATY.

The main points of the Austrian treaty are:

1—Austria will be granted a slice of Hungarian territory between the Danube and Jugo-Slavia in the region of Odenburg and Stein.

2—Czecho-Slovakia will be grated a bridgehead on the south bank of the Danube facing Pressburg, thus gaining access to two railroads running southward.

3—Austria will be granted a strip of the Czecho-Slovakia near Gmund and along the Morava Valley.

4—The Austrian army will be limited to 30,000 men, supplied by one munitions plant.

5—Czecho-Slovakia, Poland, Rumania and Jugo-Slavia are to bear $300,000,000 of the former dual monarchy's war debt. The Czechs are to pay half and the balance is to be levied among the other three powers.

These States must also meet a portion of Austria's pre-war public debt as well as certain other financial liabilities.

TURKS MAY HOLD CAPITAL.

No definite agreement has yet been reached regarding the proposal to expel all of the Turks from Europe. In view of the determined stand made by Mussulmans living in territory under British sway, it is possible that Constantinople may remain the seat of the Mohammedan faith in the same sense that the Vatican at Rome is the headquarters of the Roman Catholic faith. However, Turkey would lose all political power in southeastern Europe.

Semi-official advices from Rome state that Foreign Minister Tittoni is making good progress towards a settlement of the Adriatic problem.

COULD NOT SEEK REVENGE, SAYS BERNSTORFF

Warns Germany Against Speculating Upon American-Japanese Conflict

By ALFRED G. ANDERSEN.

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Berlin, July 20, via London, July 21.—"Everybody living in Germany knows that we neither would nor could undertake a war of revenge," declared Count von Bernstorff, former ambassador to the United States, in an address here this afternoon.

Count von Bernstorff also warned against speculating on a war between America and Japan, which, he said, "is a mistake often made in Germany before."

This speculation, added Von Bernstorff, would revive Germany's old reputation of figuring on discord between other nations. Such a conflict, the former ambassador argued, is made further improbable because the United States is concentrating on her pan-American interests, while Japan is looking to the Far East.

"The protest under which our government signed the treaty, still remains in full force, but having signed loyalty and honesty demand compliance," continued Count von Bernstorff. "This, however, will not prevent us from announcing to the whole world that our foreign policy centres in revisions of the terms imposed by our adversaries."

The ex-ambassador said that the safest foreign policy would be for Germany to strive for admission into the League of Nations as the best medium to facilitate the resumption of friendship with the allied and associated powers and to "insure a fair revision of the peace treaty especially aiming at a union of Germany and German Austria and the restoration of lost German territory or leastwise of the German nationality of its population."

John [illegible], thirty-five, a seaman, was found unconscious at Friend and Market streets early today with marks indicating that he had been the victim of a brutal assault. He recovered consciousness at the Haymarket Relief Station and said several civilians attacked him.

IF PEOPLE WILL RIDE ROAD CAN PAY RAISE

"If the people of Greater Boston will ride on the Elevated as freely under the ten-cent fare as they did under the eight-cent fare, we should be able to take care of the increase in wages all right," said Samuel L. Powers, trustee of the Boston Elevated Company.

"As I understand it, the increase in wages will add about $[illegible] to the expense of the system.

"I am glad that the strike has been settled. It has been a great hardship to the public."

Budapest, July 21.—Bela Kun's prosecution of rumor-mongering is stern and relentless. A leading local lawyer entered a barber shop the other day and said:

"The French have entered Budapest, the Bolsheviki have been overthrown."

He has been sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary—ten years at hard labor for ten words.

Charlton, July 21.—While berrying Harry J. [illegible], aged thirty-three years, fell twenty-five feet from the rocks known as "the ledges," landing on the tracks of the Boston and Albany Railroad and was instantly killed.

He is believed to have been attacked with epilepsy, to which he had been subject. A train was passing, but stopped in time to avoid hitting the body. The victim had five broken ribs, broken shoulder and hip, with possible fracture of the back.

HICKSON ASKS CHURCHES TO AID HEALING

Urges Episcopalians to Start Prayer Circles—Congregational Mission Planned

Episcopal ministers were asked today to start prayer circles for the healing mission of James Moore Hickson, Christian healer, in St. Paul's Cathedral rooms.

Over one hundred ministers were present.

Mr. Hickson described how the work started in England and what interest is shown in this type of evangelism in that country.

"I believe the day is coming when all Christian churches will give more heed to this important part of their work," he said.

"It is part of the duty of the ministry to carry this message before the people. People want to be comforted by the Christian religion. This is the Church's opportunity." During the meeting many questions were asked by the clergy.

The healer will spend all of this week at the homes of the afflicted, with the exception of Thursday and Friday, when he will hold his ministrations at the Church of the Advent.

The Congregationalists of Greater Boston announce, through their religious weekly, The Congregationalist, that they will open a healing mission in a central part of this city in the early Fall.

It is thought that the Park Street Church will be open for these gatherings.

RUSH TO SEND MAIL TO FRIENDS IN GERMANY

Lawrence, July 21.—Many German families in this city were quick to take advantage of the lifting of the ban on German mail. Saturday night packages and parcels in large numbers were left at the postoffice addressed to places in Germany. Several were somewhat disappointed at the fact that they could not send money orders to relatives there, owing to the fact that the money order system between America and Germany has yet to be re-established.

FATHER LYONS TRANSFERRED TO N. Y.

The Rev. William Devlin, Dean, Made New Boston College Head

The Very Rev. Charles W. Lyons, a native of Boston, president of Boston College and rector of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, has been transferred to New York, although the nature of his duties in that district are not known here.

The Rev. William Devlin, S. J., dean of the college, has been named to succeed Father Lyons and the Rev. John J. Geoghan, S. J., who has been prefect of studies at Boston College High School for some time, is named as the new rector of the Immaculate church.

TRANSFER A SURPRISE.

Orders to this effect have been received from Rome and were issued through the Very Rev. Joseph H. Rockwell, provincial of the Maryland-New York Province, Society of Jesus.

Father Lyons' transfer at this season of the year came as a complete surprise here as it was expected that he would not leave his duties here until at least next January, when transfers are acted on, the canon law requiring a change every six years. He is one of the most eloquent teachers in the Jesuit order and during his incumbency at the college has been responsible for activities which have enlarged the scope and achievements of the institution.

HERE ELEVEN YEARS.

Father Devlin has been identified with Boston College and Boston College High School for eleven years. He was born in New York city and was educated in Stonyhurst College, England, which is one of the oldest institutions of education in England. He is about forty-four years old. He was ordained in 1908 at Woodstock by Cardinal Gibbons. He spent his novitiate in Frederick, Md., and made his studies of philosophy and theology at Woodstock College, Md. He made a review of ascetical theology at Poughkeepsie.

Father Geoghan was born in Philadelphia and was educated at St. Joseph's College in that city. He spent his novitiate at Frederick, Md., made his studies of philosophy and theology at Woodstock and spent a year in Austria and England. He was a professor in training young Jesuit students for the profession of teaching at Poughkeepsie and was four years at Holy Cross. He made his review of ascetical theology at Poughkeepsie. He was vice-president and dean at Boston College in 1912-13 and since then prefect of studies at Boston College High School. He served as dean in the first year of the new Boston College.

OFFICE HELP TAKE MILL STRIKERS' PLACES

Lawrence, July 21.—Office help has been pressed into service to assist in filling vacancies occasioned by the strike of dressers and slasher tenders in one of the mills. The number of strikers who are out on a demand for a straight 25 per cent increase is said to be on the increase. The dressers and slasher tenders of the Arlington Mills, who had stood pat at their machines were not on the job today. It is the claim of the strikers that inside of a week the mills of the city will be seriously affected by closed down departments.

The mill men admit that orders are heavy, but maintain that they will not pay the demands even if they have to employ strike-breakers.

SCHOOLS

There are now in this country 10 to 20 million boys between the ages of 11 to 21 years attending high schools, preparatory schools, colleges, correspondence schools, etc., who are being taught that the only way to succeed in life is to become intellectual and it is a disgrace to do manual or physical work, as only the ignorant are supposed to don a pair of overalls, go on our farms or into our industries, factories, shops, etc., and actually produce.

PRIVATE ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS. The growing evil of these money making institutions is a menace to our form of government, because they are dividers of classes and incubators of snobs. The mingling of children, rich or poor, high or low, in our public schools tends towards life-long friendships among the masses and classes and is in itself a splendid education, which statement can be verified by any of our boys who have served in this war.

The object of our public schools should be to provide tools and guides of fundamental knowledge, teach the children how to study, encourage self-development, and through a well directed system of teaching, make it easier to obtain life's necessities and comforts, thus establishing a foundation for good citizenship, happiness and contentment.

If the public schools of today perform these functions

WHY IS IT now that our country has been through a crisis that the subject of education pertaining to our public school system is being discussed in every village, town and city, not only in our own State but all over the country?

WHY IS IT that just as soon as a family begins to prosper, the public schools are not good enough and their children are sent to private schools?

WHY IS IT that boys and girls who are obliged to leave our elementary schools to earn their own living and who continued practical studies by taking up business courses and attending trade schools are not accepted socially on a par with the children who continued the studies of the so-called classics?

WHY IS IT that children from poor families who, by their parents' self denial, have been put through high school are often ashamed of their homes and the occupation of their parents and seek employment in offices as stenographers, bookkeepers and clerical workers, at much lower wages, rather than be willing to work in our industries as useful producers?

WHY IS IT that our large manufacturing concerns have twice the number of applicants (at one-half the pay) for positions requiring good clothes, white collars and polished finger-nails then where overalls are required and necessary?

WHY IS IT that our large cities are today filled with young men, having devoted all their lives to so-called studies with diplomas from high schools, preparatory schools and colleges, trying to live by their wits, walking the streets looking for work, or means of obtaining an easy livelihood, at small wages, when our farms, factories and shops are begging for willing workers?

WHY IS IT that graduates from our secondary schools enter life with the exalted idea that their scholastic training has fitted them to fill only such positions as foremen, overseers, superintendents, financial men, managers, etc.?

WHY IS IT that during the crisis of the war our statesmen and leading newspapers appealed to the manufacturers all over the country to open trade schools to teach the people how to work?

WHY IS IT that in our manufacturing establishments where skilled labor is necessary, the largest percentage of foremen are foreign born?

WHY IS IT that an interesting man is today placed upon a higher pedestal than a useful man?

No one can deny that education is a blessing, science a necessity, and art, culture, music, poetry, etc., aids to our happiness, but the way education is promoted today, it is very much over-estimated and abused; for all that is really necessary to succeed in life, and even reach the summit in any line of endeavor is to possess the plain working tools of a good public school education combined with ambition, character and thrift; for if it is in a man to make good, he will do so through hard work and perseverance.

The present unrest is due, in a great measure, to the over-supply of intellectual workers and deficiency in producers, which state of affairs can be traced back more or less to our educational institutions, for they have endeavored and well succeeded in turning out intellectuals who have a smattering knowledge on all subjects and mastery of none. This tends towards useless hobbies and creates a feeling that it is beneath them to enter our shops and factories as producers and always remains a handicap and disappointment when they are obliged to seek a livelihood.

The result of this educational propaganda is that ambitious, thrifty families are practising all kinds of self-denial, go without the ordinary comforts and even necessities to send their children through some college or university, for they are convinced through reading, attending lectures, listening to orators and scholastic acquaintances that a diploma from one of these universities or higher institutions of learning is a magnet, charm or shimmerer which will insure business success, wealth, social position and happiness, whereas, the facts are precisely contrary. The professions are over-crowded, the largest percentage are not making a decent livelihood. Authors, artists, musicians, etc., are living on their families or practically starving. Clerical help, such as employees in banks, investment houses, insurance companies, salesmen, store help and general office workers can be obtained at one-half the wage demanded by members of the labor unions.

The trouble with our public schools is that the pedagogic professors who have never come in direct contact with our industries, commerce or political life make up the curriculum. Consequently, we try to teach the ornaments and playthings of life rather than the practical, absolutely essential rudiments of technical and business training which makes for production. It is no wonder we have so many labor troubles and are drifting towards radical socialism and chaos when NOBODY IS WILLING TO WORK.

It requires just as much education (instruction and discipline) if not more, to become a skilled mechanic, manufacturer, builder or producer as it does to be a so-called mouth or pen worker. Originality, experience, the understanding of human nature and values, with executive ability, are in reality what makes for success. College training and the cramming of the mind with book and theoretical knowledge has not changed the percentages of fools and geniuses and, therefore, when misguided young men who have devoted most of their lives to study, find out from hard knocks and experience that the Good Lord did not intend them to be intellectual workers, in their disappointment and despair, rather than go into our industries and become useful producers, they become agitators and soap-box orators, converted to socialism, anarchism, bolshevism and all other "isms" that tend towards the destruction of society.

SUGGESTIONS

A STATE BOARD should be appointed by the Governor with full control over all elemenary schools in the Commonwealth, and, as no intellect is broad enough to take in more than a small portion of essentials, it is important that members of this board should be selected from practical, successful persons in all walks of life.

COMPULSORY ATTENDANCE by ALL children in PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

STUDIES should be STANDARDIZED so that children in village or city shall have equal educational opportunities; the so-called grammar schools should be improved and two years added to the present course when high schools would not be necessary.

PROFESSIONAL, SCIENTIFIC and VOCATIONAL training with such improved foundation of practical real learning would take its own turn and would place the blame of future failure or success on a person's own endeavors.

The object of this article is to sow seeds for constructive criticism and, if you believe with me that the essentials in life are of more importance than the ornaments, TALK, WORK and VOTE for a decided change in our elementary school system.

PALESTINE WILL BE OPENED TO JEWS

Proclamation by Britain Making It a National Homeland Near, Says Dr. Eichler

Great Britain, within the next month, is to proclaim Palestine a national Jewish homeland, according to announcement by Dr. M. M. Eichler, director for the New England Zionist Bureau.

The statement was made at the regional convention of New England Zionists, in Elks Hall, Revere.

"Encouraging news has reached us concerning the speedy realization of our great aim, the establishment of a Jewish commonwealth in Palestine," Dr. Eicher said. "Dr. Chaim Weitzman, in a recent cable, assures us that it is only a matter of a few weeks when all legal formalities will be recognized as a Jewish homeland under the mandate of Great Britain and the supervision of the League of Nations.

BRANDEIS THERE NOW.

"We New Englanders rejoice," the speaker continued, "that the man we call our own—our peerless leader—Justice Louis D. Brandeis, is at this very moment in Palestine studying at close range the needs of the land which shall in the near future be the scene of the greatest miracle of history—the resurrection of a nation after 1900 years of dormancy."

The conference, which was called "to clarify and articulate" Zionist opinion, in advance of the convention of the Zionist Organization of America which will convene next September in Chicago, was attended by more than 400 delegates, and as many visitors representing nearly every Jewish community in New England.

Those who discussed the problems dealing with the creation of a Jewish homeland in Palestine and other matters pertaining to the welfare of New England Jewry included Max Mitchell, treasurer of the Zionist Bureau for New England; Sidney S. Conrad, Dr. M. M. Eichler, Charles W. Cowan of New York, Julius Meyer, Henry H. Levenson, Rabbi J. J. Jurman, Robert Silverman, S. H. Waldstein, Isaac Harris, Rabbi D. M. Shohet, the Rev. S. E. Manchester, Dr. Elias Caplan, Rabbi Hyman Solomon, and others.

NEW JEWRY NEEDED.

Samuel H. Waldstein, chairman of the supervising committee of New England Zionist Bureau, sounded the keynote of the meeting when he said:

"There is a new Palestine, new in the sense of opportunity and condition of development. That new Palestine demands a new Jewry, new in the sense of thinking in the terms of a new life.

"We Jews of New England must stand shoulder to shoulder and be prepared for the duties that confront us at this critical moment, which will decide the real worth and vitality of the movement."

One of the most important resolutions passed by the convention and introduced by Henry H. Levenson, said in substance that in order to establish a homeland in Palestine for the Jews, it must be done in a spirit of social justice, equity and economic equality, and thus eliminate the evils of present-day society. No enterprise, the resolution declared, shall be endorsed or furthered by the Zionists, unless it is based upon the principles and ideals of social justice, democracy, and a co-operative national effort.

TO RESUME OLD COMMAND IN CALIFORNIA

Lieut-Gen. Hunter Liggett Assigned to Department of the West

New York, July 21. — Lieutenant-General Hunter Liggett, who led the Americans who stopped the Germans at the Marne, sent them reeling at St. Mihiel, and clinched victory for the allies in the Meuse-Argonne drive, returned on the Aquitania.

It was he who, a little more than a year ago, started the driving of a human bayonet of Yankees warriors into the flank of the Germans at Chateau-Thierry and started them on the retreat that never stopped until November 11.

To use his own words:

"Regulars, national guardsmen and drafted troops have fought under my command in Europe. None of them ever turned back."

A million American soldiers were under General Liggitt's command at one time, and the American leader has an idea that it was his men who saved the day. Pointing at hundreds of doughboys on the docks of the big liner, he said:

"There are the men who won the war. Pose for a photograph? Not unless those enlisted men who went through hell are photographed with me."

"I don't think Marshal Haig meant to belittle any of the allies. He has spoken to me from time to time in appreciation of our services. He was probably talking to his own people for political effect. He has been making a hard fight to obtain for the British soldiers all the rights to which they are entitled."

When General Liggett went into Germany months ago he found the Germans apathetic. Now all is changed, he said. They are stronger economically than we think, and will recover in a remarkably short time.

Mrs. Liggett was on the pier to greet her husband. She had no pass to get inside the area for troops and had to wait with hundreds of other friends and relatives of soldiers.

"It's good to be home again," he said, as he embraced her.

"Let me pinch your arm; I want to make sure you are real," was the wifely reply, and she gave the general a good pinch.

Then she audibly admired his decorations and they left the pier together. The General will remain in New York for several days before he goes to assume command of the Department of the West.

The Governor Cobb was permitted to make its usual week-end trip from Yarmouth, arriving here with 194 passengers.

"NAUGHTY BOY" PROVES TOO MUCH FOR SPOUSE

New York, July 21.—It's bad enough to find tender, endearing letters in your husband's clothing, but when the "other woman" calls you on the phone and says that your husband has "just been a naughty boy and to treat him as such," it is a bit too much. PLANT STRIKERS TO ASK STATE HEARING

The strike of 2,700 shoeworkers of the Thomas G. Plant Company, Jamaica Plain, entered today on its eleventh week. The strikers, who are demanding the right of collective bargaining, announced they would appeal to the State Board of Arbitration for an open hearing on the troubles at the plant, the firm having refused to arbitrate the question.

The Plant Company charges that the strikers broke an agreement which they signed individually upon entering the employ of the company. The strikers admit having done so, but claim that the company has no right to insist that applicants for work sign away their right to bargain collectively.

5,077 DISABLED SOLDIERS IN TRAINING

Over 100 Vocations Taught in 700 Schools Under Rehabilitation Act

Washington, July 21.—Under direction of the Federal Board for Vocational Education, 5,077 disabled soldiers, sailors and marines are in training in more than 700 different institutions throughout the country.

Five hundred and forty-six schools and colleges now number wounded soldiers among their students, and 198 commercial and industrial establishments have disabled men on their force learning trades. In order to give the men the kind of courses they want as near their homes as possible, the board has selected all types of institutions for their training.

Elementary schools and State universities, the small service station, and the manufacturing establishments of the newest type of automobiles, Y. M. C. A. schools, trade schools, shops, big and small, all vie with one another in giving their best training to these returned soldiers.

The courses they choose differ as the temperament of the men. Forty-four are taking law and sixty-four medicine. Those taking commercial courses number 1,048.

More than 100 different occupations are being taught under the administration of the Vocational Rehabilitation act.

LOGAN FREES TWO MEN; REPRIMANDS OFFICER

Judge Logan in the South Boston Court today administered a rebuke to Samuel Cohen, a special officer of the New Haven road, who appeared as a witness against two Boston Elevated employes charged with walking on the railroad tracks. The men are Lawrence Rocco, No. 47 South Margin street, and Joseph Lodie, No. 75 Endicott street, both of the North End. They told the court that Cohen beckoned to them and that when they stepped on the tracks in answer to his signal he placed them under arrest. In discharging the men Judge Logan said to Cohen: "I wish to give you warning not to come into this court again and testify in the manner you did today against these men."

There is Now Plenty of Beef and Lamb for Everybody

At the present price levels these are the cheapest of the meat foods.

It is now possible to advise the American people that it is no longer necessary to conserve beef and lamb.

Right now, there is plenty of these meats for everybody and this will be the situation for many months to come. Here are the reasons:

1. Demobilization of our armies has gone ahead so rapidly that they now require very little beef and lamb.
2. England and the other European countries no longer look to us for their beef supplies.
3. When war was declared the American live-stock raiser started to produce more meat. The result has been a large increase in live stock production.

Therefore,

You may now buy beef and lamb—and buy freely.

TIPLITZ IS CERTAIN OF VICTORY

Meets Johnny Dundee in Main Bout of Twelve Rounds at Fenway A. A.

Fenway A. A. Selections.

Johnny Dundee to beat Joe Tiplitz.

Freddy Madden to beat Teddy Murphy.

Burt Jones to beat Kid Lee.

By JACK CONWAY.

If confidence counts for anything in ring battles, Joe Tiplitz will give Johnny Dundee the battle of his life at the Fenway A. A. tonight when they meet in a twelve-round bout.

"I'll beat Dundee sure," said Tiplitz after arriving in our fair city from Philadelphia. "This is the opportunity of my young life to prove I'm the lightweight who has the best chance of grabbing Benny Leonard's crown.

"Dundee is not a stranger to me. We recently met in a six-round tussle in Philadelphia. The wise birds thought I'd get a sound trouncing, but when the final blow had been delivered I was given the newspaper decision.

"I realize Dundee is a mighty nifty performer, but I'm too fast and strong for him. And then I can hit."

There's no doubt about Tiplitz's ability to score with a deadly wallop. He proved he is one of the best punchers in the lightweight ranks when he stopped George Chaney of Baltimore in three rounds at Philadelphia last Monday night.

Tiplitz has come to the front with dazzling speed. Six months ago he was fighting as an amateur in Philadelphia. Phil Glassman, who manages Lew Tendler, saw him fight. And he decided he was a million dollar proposition as a ring attraction. He matched him with Patsey Hommey. And Tiplitz won. The little Philadelphian then knocked out Joe Fox, British featherweight champion. Dundee and Chaney were next in line. Several lesser lights also were trounced by Tiplitz.

At twelve rounds Tiplitz will find Dundee a mighty different proposition than at six frames. It will be remembered that Benny Valger outpointed Dundee for the first six rounds of their bout at Mechanics Building last Tuesday night. Dundee then got started and piled up enough points to give him the victory.

Dundee is boxing better right now than he has for over a year. He has recovered completely from his strenuous bouts for the [illegible] and those at army camps. He's boxing in whirlwind style, while his punch possesses its old sting. All of which means that Tiplitz will have to travel at a dizzy pace if he is to finish in front this p. m.

The Fenway A. A. management has installed 1,000 additional seats at its quarters, which will give all who care to an opportunity to witness the festivities. It looks like a better attraction than the Dundee-Valger fight. The latter does a lot of loafing when pressed hard, while Tiplitz is one of those young men who performs at his best when in the centre of a ring swapping punches with an opponent.

The tussle will give Boston fans an opportunity to see how good Dundee is when opposed by a free hitter.

Freddy Madden of East Boston will oppose Teddy Murphy, West End veteran, in the semi-final bout of eight rounds. Madden is one of the best of the new crop of local boxers but will meet a severe test in his contest with Murphy.

Burt Jones of Revere and Kid Lee of Chelsea will renew hostilities when they meet in a six-round contest. There will also be another six-round prelim.

BIG STAKES TO BE RACED FOR AT LAUREL

Laurel, Md., July 21.—Frank J. Bryan, the new Racing Secretary of the Laurel track, has announced a list of stakes for the fall meeting, which insures some of the best racing ever enjoyed here.

Under a most ambitious policy one stake for three-year-olds, with a value of $10,000, is offered, which is a new departure, as most of the important fixtures for this age are run in the Spring.

In all probability this race will settle the question of three-year-old supremacy and, barring accidents, bring about a meeting between Sir Barton and Purchase.

In addition to this new race two stakes are offered with $7,500 added, three with $5,000, and two with $3,000, while the overnight purses will run from $1,000 to $2,000, which give them the dignity almost of early closing fixtures.

Tennis Stars Compete for Longwood Bowl

That the sixty-six candidates for the singles competition for the Longwood Bowl, which began on the courts of the Longwood Cricket Club at Chestnut Hill today, must be at the top of the game to face William M. Johnston, the clever Californian, who secured the first leg on the trophy the last time it was competed for in 1916, was shown by the masterly way the former national champion and cup holder defeated William T. Tilden, Jr., of Philadelphia for the national clay court title at Chicago Saturday.

Johnston possessed all of his cunning, the kind that carried him to victory at the West Side Tennis Club, Forest Hills, L. I., in 1916, and although he will be forced to wait the outcome of the tournament this week, he will bide his time in playing doubles with a partner to be chosen when he reaches Boston.

There were only a very few of the exponents of the net game missing from the Longwood tourney, and indications point to it being one of the best in the history of the famous club. There are several players who have been gradually working into their best style of play, and among these is R. Norris Williams, 2nd. He has played very little since he came out of the war. He showed in the inter-city tournament for the Church Cup that he had all of his old strokes, but needed competition to perfect them.

The remarkable work of Ichiya Kumagae, the Jap, who has been winning everything before him this season, has caused many to look for him to win his way into the final round. As the draw shows, he will be in the upper half, in which R. Norris Williams 2d and other high-class men are to perform. Kumagae, with Johnston, is the only player to have beaten William T. Tilden, Jr., of Philadelphia this season. Tilden had been wiping up the courts with all his opponents until he met Kumagae. The latter tossed him aside, and Saturday's victory by Johnston causes Tilden to withdraw from the Longwood bowl competition.

C. A. C. Bouts Will Be Held Tomorrow Evening

The Commercial A. C. bouts, postponed from last Friday because of the car strike, will be held at the West End Club tomorrow night. The card includes a main bout of twelve rounds between "Battling" Jack Johnson of the South End and Dan "Porky" Flynn of the West End, a semi-final of eight rounds between Young Francis of Lawrence and Billy Sullivan of South Boston and two six-round preliminaries.

TED "KID" LEWIS TRAINING UNDER JIMMY DEFOREST

Long Branch, N. J., July 21.—Ted ("Kid") Lewis, ex-welterweight champion, today started training for his battle with the man who deprived him of his title, Jack Britton. The erstwhile welterweight champion is under the care of Jimmy DeForest, the man who helped put Jack Dempsey into such wonderful shape for his bout with Willard.

PETE HERMAN OFFERED BOUT WITH JIMMY WILDE

BECKETT PACKS TREMENDOUS WALLOP

New English Champion Forces Battle From Start Like Jack Dempsey

Joe Beckett, the newest sensation in English boxing circles, has attained his great standing in somewhat the same manner that Jack Dempsey has reached his present status.

Beckett is no newcomer to the ring game. Before the war began he engaged in many bouts in England with no little success, but he never attained any such a rating as has been his since his two-round victory over Frank Goddard at the Olympia about a month ago.

Goddard, who frequently had been compared to Jim Jeffries because of his remarkable physique, was regarded by ring followers in England as invincible. The feeling toward him was something like that which many held in regard to Willard before Dempsey met Jess at Toledo on July 4. It had been said frequently of Goddard that no man could hurt him and that his prodigious strength was a guarantee against a knockout or severe punishment.

Like Dempsey at Toledo, Beckett was all over his man before the first round ended, though he did not succeed in putting his heavier opponent down as Dempsey did. But the outcome was foreseen in that opening round.

NORMAN ROSS VICTOR IN BIG PARIS SWIM

Paris, July 21.—Norman Ross of the United States army won the swimming match in the Seine across Paris, a distance of about 8,000 metres, in one hour and thirty minutes. Bacigalupo, Italian, was only four-fifths of a second behind Ross. Morris, Australian, was third, close up.

An immense crowd lined both banks of the Seine and gave evidence of the popularity of Ross as a consequence of his victories during the inter-allied games, by heartily cheering him as he surged along with powerful strokes, which rapidly overcame the handicap of 500 metres in favor of the female contestants. Bacigalupo made a game race all the way.

Wins for Ninth Time

Minneapolis, Minn., July 21.—Harry G. Legg, Western amateur golf champion, won the Minnesota State title for the ninth time by defeating Harrison R. Johnson, a St. Paul youngster, 7 up and 6 to play, in the thirty-six hole final at the Minikahda Club.

THE STANDING OF THE CLUBS

AT the start of the fourth week in July, four hundred and nineteen years after Columbus first set either foot in America, St. Louey had two clubs in the second division. Looks like Christopher landed here on his left foot.

IF both leagues were thrown together, like corned beef hash in the army, instead of being last in the American League, the A's would be seventeenth in the scrambled league. They would beat out the Phil Nationals by forty points.

ABOUT the same time that suds lost its kick, the Braves also went beevo. They are going good now, which is like sticking in a bid after the auctioneer has rolled up his little red flag.

AFTER nipping a pennant for President Baker and getting stabbed right where the manufacturers put the label on Policemen and Firemen's suspenders, Pat Moran escaped to Cincinnati and is hpying the Reds up for the pennant. If Pat cops the guidon, the Red fans will kick all their avenues and boulevards into one street and name it after Pat.

THE Robins were going like an oilcan on fire for three months, but an oilcan on fire is only an oilcan after all.

WASHINGTON'S spurt stopped about the same time that the narcotic laws got strict. Team trying to horn in on the pennant is like a stew going after his laundry. No checkee, no washee.

THE Red Sox will pick this year's gravy about the same time that poorhouses have polo teams. This is one of the few years that Boston has two teams in the second division.

THE bird who chirped that the Pirates would cop this year ought to get a job as recruiting sergeant in the army. Anybody who can lie like that is wasting his time in baseball. The Pirates are within a stone's throw of first place, but it's the Blarney stone.

IF Cleveland gets the velvet this year it will be the first pennant they've won since Hector was the only one saved of a large litter. The boys have a clean slate on the wrong side. They're high in the league now, but the higher you live in an apartment house the easier it is for some bird to grab your milk off the dumb waiter.

DON'T know what's the matter with the Yanks. The lads are good hitters when they hit, good base runners when they're on and splendid fielders when they catch and stop 'em. They look like winners on paper, but so does an oil well.

YOU never pipe the little apples on top of the barrel and you never see the little worms at all. The Cubs and White Sox should cop if the little worms don't eat up their percentage. It won't be the first time that both teams got within shouting distance of their league flags and then lost their voices.

LOOKS like the Giants are in like a letter in the mail chute. Which ain't saying that it will get there since Burleson took charge of the works.

CORBETT'S COLUMN

Philadelphia, one of the best baseball towns in the entire history of the national game, has been wrecked temporarily by the niggardliness of one club owner and the inability of the other to rebuild a machine that he wrecked of his own free will.

Once the Quaker City was represented by the greatest baseball machine in the world—Connie Mack's Athletics. Philadelphia came to mean all that was great in diamond achievement. For many years the Athletics ruled supreme. And then the man who had built the greatest team of them all, disabled it—while Philadelphia groaned.

But Mack had his reasons. Dissension had split the club—and he decided that the better plan was to get rid of those whose loyalty to the club might be questioned. Every since the Athletics have been synonymous with "tail enders."

But a situation vastly different exists with the Phillies; a condition where a man wrecked a great ball club solely for pecuniary gain and who ever since then has utter contempt for the wishes of the fans who have supported him nobly.

William F. Baker is the controlling owner of the Phillies. Year after year, during his ownership, Baker has demonstrated an appalling lack of sportsmanship—has shown that he is in the game only for the money that can be made.

Baker's most recent "boner"—the casting off of faithful Jack Coombs—has sounded his death knell in big league circles.

No man ever did more for a ball club than Pat Moran with the 1915, 1916, 1917 and 1918 Phillies. Working for Baker for meagre pay in comparison with his worth, Moran led the Phillies into the world series of 1915 and Baker made a financial killing due to that brilliant Moran performance.

And through 1916 and 1917, Moran's skillful work with only a fair ball club enabled the Phillies to break a little better than even—while most of the clubs were losing heavily.

All that time the fans patronized the Phillie park in liberal fashion.

And then came the first slap that Baker, "the money grabber," delivered to the faces of the fans. He sold Grover Alexander and Bill Killifer—the greatest battery in baseball. His act wrecked the pennant chances of his club—took from the team its real bulwarks.

During the Winter of 1918-1919 Baker was called "the biggest ingrate in baseball" when he released Pat Moran without warning—tossed out of a job a man who had made perhaps a quarter of a million for him and who was one of the best loved leaders in the game.

Baker blamed Moran for the 1917 and 1918 failure of the Phillies to win a pennant—a grave injustice to wonderful Pat.

The fans have turned away from the Phillie Park. And it is unlikely that they'll ever go back until such time as a man—or a group of men—dominate the club whose ownership idea is mixed with real sportsmanship—not money grabbers.

BILL JAMES IN BOX AGAINST THE TIGERS

Detroit, July 21.—Manager Ed Barrow of the Red Sox, in an effort to make it two victories in a row from the Tigers, sent Bill James to the mound, while Jennings picked Howard Ehmke to stop the Red Sox, who, in the initial game of the present series, showed decidedly more life and fight than they have done before all season in this man's town.

The Tigers were fairly smothered by the Red Sox in the opening tilt. Three Detroit pitchers were nicked for eight runs and fifteen hits, while Herb Pennock blanked the home club, allowing the Tigers but five hits. Never at any time during the one-sided game were they able to worry the visitors.

Pennock's curve ball kept their batting efforts confined largely to the infield, and when the Tigers threatened to score, in the eighth and ninth innings, snappy double plays broke up their incipient rallies.

LIKE TIGER PITCHING.

The Red Sox, on the other hand, found Detroit pitching greatly to their liking. Boland started the hurling for Detroit. He was miles out of form, and was relieved in the sixth after having been touched for six runs and ten hits.

Doc Ayers replaced the usually competent "Bernie," and Doc lasted but a single inning, during which a two-base hit by Pennock into the centre field crowd, combined with singles by McInnis, Scott and Hooper, resulted in two runs. Cunningham ended the game in the box for the Tigers. Nine men faced him in two innings of his service and Roth was the only man to get a hit, but the damage had been done.

COBB GETS TWO HITS.

Ty Cobb was the only Tiger who managed to do anything at all with Pennock's offerings. Out of three times up Cobb achieved a single and a two-base hit. Hooper, in the opening inning, walked and was advanced to third on singles by Vitt and Roth. He came home as Young threw out Schang.

Boston made two more runs in the fourth on four hits. They scored another run in the fifth, two in the sixth and two in the seventh.

Vitt was forced to leave the game in the fourth inning after he and Ruth collided in front of the left field stand going after Veach's foul fly.

RED SOX THREATEN REVOLT OVER TRADING OF MAYS

The following is taken from today's New York Sun. This would seem to be in direct contradiction to Saturday's "Red Sox Harmony Special" from Cleveland to the effect that the Boston players had voted Barrow the best manager ever in a signed petition:

Detroit, July 20.—A trade is pending between the New York Yankees and the Boston Red Sox and involving the transfer of Carl Mays, it was learned here tonight.

If this trade is allowed to go through by the Red Sox management there is going to be a lot of dissatisfaction on the Boston Club.

Tonight the Red Sox players freely expressed their indignation that the management should even consider such action.

Enraged at what they characterize as Mays' desertion, the players feel that the submarine pitcher should be dealt with severely and that his sale or trade, especially to any club which has a chance for the flag, will simply be playing into the deserter's hands. The players openly threaten a revolt.

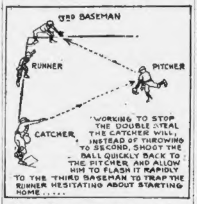
How to Play Baseball

THIS is the forty-ninth of a series of 100 articles by Hugh S. Fullerton, celebrated baseball expert, on "How to Play Baseball." In this lesson Mr. Fullerton continues to tell how to become a pitcher. These articles will be a feature of the American's sport pages each day. Don't miss them.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON

The pitcher should decide with the manager and captain as to who shall handle balls thrown back to the infield by the outfielders. This is important. The man who handles the ball in the infield must be one of quick judgment, quick to decide whether to permit a thrown ball to go to the plate or to cut it off and throw it back to second to stop the runner who made the hit.

On teams which carry seven or eight pitchers it generally is bad policy for the manager to permit the pitcher to do this. It is better to have the first baseman run to a point near the pitcher's box and assume control of the play. This makes one man to teach the play to teams of seven or eight.



"WORKING TO STOP THE DOUBLE STEAL THE CATCHER WILL, INSTEAD OF THROWING TO SECOND, SHOOT THE BALL QUICKLY BACK TO THE PITCHER AND ALLOW HIM TO FLASH IT RAPIDLY TO THE THIRD BASEMAN TO TRAP THE RUNNER HESITATING ABOUT STARTING HOME....

When the first baseman takes the play it is the duty of the pitcher to go behind the catcher to back him up if the throw is coming to the plate or to back up the third baseman if the throw is in that direction.

In many teams catchers working to stop the double steal will, instead of throwing down to second shoot the ball quickly back to the pitcher and allow him to flash it rapidly to the third baseman to trap the runner hesitating about starting home. The pitcher must be careful not to betray by his action that the play is to be tried that way.

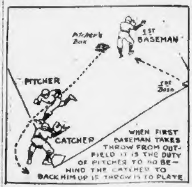
This play is a hard one for the pitcher, who must practice catching hard thrown balls and relaying them either to third or back to the plate as quickly as possible.

This play, however, is advisable only with a nervous and fretful runner on third base. Under all ordinary conditions the catcher who throws back to the pitcher lacks confidence in himself or in the infielders and is afraid to make the long throw, which is the right play.

To the majority of players the best advice is that they must never try to make a play with one hand when they can get two hands on the ball. This does not apply well to pitchers. The pitcher should practice constantly fielding slow rollers with one hand, and grabbing bunts with his throwing hand.

A large percentage of the bunts a pitcher is called upon to handle must be fielded with one hand or the runner will beat them out. The pitcher loses the majority of such hits because he looks to see where the runner is and takes his eyes off the ball.

His first duty is to reach the ball as quickly as possible and never take his eyes off it until it is in his hand. He should practice throwing to first base without looking at the bag. That is, he must study the geography of the diamond until he can almost throw to the proper point with his eyes shut. Practice this, and you will be astonished to find how naturally you will throw to the right spot almost by intuition.



WHEN FIRST BASEMAN TAKES THROW FROM OUTFIELD IT IS THE DUTY OF PITCHER TO GO BEHIND THE CATCHER TO BACK HIM UP IF THROW IS TO PLATE

BRAVES BATTLE CARDINALS FOR SIXTH PLACE

Three of those cheers—
The strike has gone blooey
Which means much more dough
For the Braves and St. Looey.
—Songs of the Bleachers.

By NICK FLATLEY.

The Braves today started a battle to crawl up one more notch in the National League race. They began a three-day series with the Cardinals, and by winning the majority of the pastimes can step ahead.

As things stand just now, the teams are virtually tied. The Braves haven't been going any too well, but they have a little something on the visitors, who never have recovered from a somewhat sensational spurt at the beginning of the season.

The Braves with a pretty good ball club—one that would be very good with a real pitcher and a real outfielder added—are of course out of the scramble for honors, but there's no reason in the world why they shouldn't pass the Cards and Robins and the Pirates before football days cut into the picture.

Following the clash with the Cards, the wigwamers trek for the West, via New York and Philadelphia. They stop three days in Gotham, one in Philadelphia, and then hop to Cincinnati. They play Pittsburgh, Chicago and St. Louis in turn, and then return. Quite a lengthy expedition as they do not get back to these parts until August 13.

Boston fans these days can expect to hear any minute that Carl Mays has been traded. The temperamental heaver is now in the process of being sold with the Yankees and Tigers as the most probable purchasers. His advent would strengthen either club sufficiently to change the complexion of the A. L. race, provided he did not bring a price in players that would wreck the machine that gets him.

There's hardly a chance that either Jennings or Huggins will smash their own teams just to get an A1 pitcher, but there's no doubt the Red Sox will eventually gather a few hefty athletes for fussy Carl.

K. OF C. FIELD DAY AT NORTH BEDFORD

At the Knights of Columbus outing in North Bedford, Frank A. Silver and Joseph Camatelli walked off with most of the sporting honors. Both are from East Boston High School.

In the 100-yard dash Silver was first, with Camatelli a close second. Time 10 4-5 seconds. Likewise in the 220-yard dash, time 23 3-5 seconds. In the potato race, Comtatelli made first, with Silver following. The tug-o-war between married and single men was a victory for the former.

The ball game between the K of C. team and the New Bedford town team was a lively affair. The score was 4 to 2 in favor of the K. of C. About 500 attended the outing.

SHIPING BOARD TEAM DEEATS RECEIVING SHIP

The U.S. Shipping Board nine defeated the Receiving Ship nine of Hingham 5 to 2, at Braves Field.

Hingham scored two runs in the third inning, and held the lead until the sixth. Pitcher Goodwyn had been steady and had allowed only one scratch up to that session when three Shipping Board batters connected safely and aided by wild pegs all around the bases and McNamara's timely wallops, piled up four runs. M. Walsh on first then shifted places with Godwyn. A hit and two errors gave the winners another run in the seventh.

One hundred parts of tin to eight of antimony, four of copper and one of bismuth are given as the proportions of good ware.

When a Girl Marries

A NEW SERIAL OF YOUNG MARRIED LIFE

Ann Lisle Writes Interestingly of the Trials and Slight Jealousies of a Bride

By Ann Lisle

CHAPTER CXLV.

Copyright, 1919, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

IT took less than three hours to motor to Terryfriars Hall, but I've an idea it seemed half a lifetime to Terry.

His love for Betty had expressed itself in half a dozen ways—a giant basket of fruit, a box with the long, lean stems of American Beauties peeking through the cut end, a wicker case of jellies, a pile of magazines were stacked on the floor of the limousine. But Terry himself was now without means of expression. He was silent—utterly reserved—and as frightened as a schoolboy caught playing hookey.

I made him light his pipe to relieve the nervous strain of the journey, but there wasn't another thing I could do for him. Our brave Captain Terry was in a blue funk.

At last we arrived, saw the head nurse, who appeared satisfied with our credentials and passed us along to the pavilion where Betty was located. There we waited a long, dreary ten minutes in a little chintz-hung room that made a fine effort to be cheery, and at last there came to us Miss Moss, formerly of the quivering, retreating chin and poached-egg personality, but now looking almost clean-cut and efficient in her starched white uniform.

Terry, who had never met Miss Moss, leaped to his feet and gasped:

"How is she?"

In that cry there was no suggestion of his usual reserve.

"Oh, nicely, nicely," twittered Miss Moss. "Doctor says there's really no danger now that she'll lose the use of her arm. And her head's much clearer."

Terry seized her shoulder in fingers that were white at the knuckles.

"Her arm! Was it as bad as that?"

He looked at his own strong arm as if he hated it for being so sturdy and well when Betty's must be bandaged and torn.

"There! there!" murmured Miss Moss, as if she were talking to a little boy. "I'm telling you doctor says there's no danger any more. You'd better go for a walk about the grounds while I take Mrs. Harrison to see my little girl. And this afternoon you shall see her, too, if you'll be very, very calm."

This to Terry the reserved!

He went white at Miss Moss's words. I knew he was wondering if Betty had asked for me—had chosen me—and had refused, perhaps, to see him.

"We've a few things in the car for her," ventured Terry. "May she have them?"

"I'll send an orderly," said the efficient, if romantic, Miss Moss. "Come, Mrs. Harrison."

Terry gripped my hand as if I were going on a long journey. Then, as I turned to follow Miss Moss, he jammed on his cap and went dashing in long strides out of the building.

"I'll have my lunch while you're with her," said Miss Moss, carrying on the new tradition that the third person singular feminine pronoun could have no antecedent other than Betty. "That will give you a chance to—visit."

She took me to the door, opened it and murmured:

"Here's Mrs. Harrison, dear."

There I was on the threshold of Betty's room wanting suddenly to run away and cry for more than I did to go in and face a Betty all bandaged and pale.

"Anne, Anne—you found me!" cried a tired voice like a little ghost of Betty's warm, vibrating tones.

In another second I was at Betty's bedside, kissing her soft cheeks and her burning forehead and holding her hot hand against my throat.

"Yes, dear, I've found you. And I'm going to stay with you as long as you'll let me," I whispered.

Betty loosened her hand to brush away two or three tears that had gotten as far as the ends of her long eyelashes. Then she smiled wistfully.

"I'm so brave and self-sufficient?" she said. "I plan well enough to save you from being bothered about me, and then I go blubbering for joy when you upset my plans and find me out."

"No more 'saving me,' please, dear. We were scouring the world for you, Terry and Jennie and Tony and I—and Jim," I added consciously.

"Why, I worried you! I'm so sorry, Anne. Didn't you get the notes I sent the morning we came here? I gave them and the money for the stamps to our taxi-driver—special deliveries to you and Tony and Jennie, and a telegram for Terry."

I laughed in relief at this clearing up of the mystery of the note I had received "three days after date."

"Well, the taxi-driver decided to spare six cents to his conscience fund in the end. He mailed the letters. Now about you, dear. Are you strong enough to talk? Will you tell me a little bit about it all?"

"It was my arm, Anne. It got worse and worse all the time. I thought it was going to be—paralyzed. I was so frightened. And I didn't want to be a burden to anyone who loved me."

As Betty spoke an idea flashed across my mind. Was it this fear and not the memory of her dead husband that had stood between her and Terry?

"You're all right now, dear," I whispered close to her cheek. "And we're here—Terry and I. Shall I call him?"

The Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michaelis

OH, my heart is full of malice and I have a thirst for gore, like old Bluebeard in his palace, I am very gruff and sore! I have toiled and labored daily on my little garden plot, so when hunger should assail me I could fill an iron pot with some squash and beets and berries, with some artichokes and peas, with some garlic and some cherries, with some home-grown cottage cheese. And I thought to cook the jumble 'til such odors would arise they would make my neighbors grumble and give vent to envious sighs. But, alas, my hopes were dusty, all my plans have been in vain, and with no such morsel tasty can I banish hunger's pain. When the onion sets had sprouted and the garlic grew so green, I threw up my lid and shouted, all was joy upon the scene. But 'twas followed soon by sorrow for ten thousand sparrows flew on the morning of the morrow to enjoy my garden, too. And they ate the sprouting salad, and they ate the turnip buds, they consumed the celery pallid and they dug up all the spuds. Then the chickens from my neighbors came and joined 'em in the fun, wrecked the hopes of their labors and my garden's days were done. Then I hit upon another safer, saner gardening plan, and each seed I sowed I'd cover with a shining fresh tin can. All my being glowed with pleasure and I said: "No worries now. I can garden at my leisure and raise fourteen crops of chow." I groan! Once more I toil and hasten, I can't drown me in the moat, for each tin can has been eaten by my best friend's billy goat.

Touched a Tender Spot

An irate mother was chastising her disobedient little daughter, the form of punishment adopted being confinement in her bedroom. The child was obstreperous, however, and the mother growing more irate, threw her roughly on the bed and dared her to move until permission was given. For a while the little one remained quiet, hearing her parent stamp around and walk out downstairs, but half an hour passed and no call came. So the offender cried out, "Mother, I have been good a long time, may I come down?" The mother's anger had not subsided, and her response to the child's appeal was an imperative command not to move until permission was given. "Lie still where you are," were the words in which the order was conveyed, "until I tell you you may come down!" "But, mother," the little one remonstrated, "I'm lying on your best hat, and the longer I stay the worse it will be!"

Making of Jellies

By Loretto C. Lynch

NOW that the thrifty housewife is making jelly for use next Winter, many letters are coming with a variety of questions about jelly and its making. Dietitians tell us that fruit is necessary in the diet. It must be remembered that a moderate use of jelly in the diet provides the mineral salts just as would the fresh fruit from which the jelly is made.

Before beginning to make jelly, several things are necessary to insure success. First, a selection of utensils. A large agate, enameled ware or aluminum cookpot will be needed. Tin or iron should not be used, as the fruit juice has a chemical effect upon these metals, not only discoloring the product, but producing substances deleterious to health.

Any clean glasses, cold cream jars or small stone crocks may be used for storing the jelly. A wire potato masher, a wooden spoon, knives, a graduated measure, some paraffin wax and a jelly bag made of flannel or muslin will be among the things needed.

Select a bright, sunny day for jelly-making. On damp days evaporation is so slow that the jelly is apt to be overcooked.

Wash the fruit. Berries, grapes and currants may be mashed. It is not necessary to remove currants from the stems. Hard fruits like apples should be cut into small pieces and just covered with water. It is usually not necessary to add any water to currants, grapes or berries. Let the fruit cook slowly until it is very soft. Turn into the jelly bag, which has been previously dipped into hot water, and let drip over night.

The jelly bag may be hung from a hook. Sometimes it is suspended from the handle of a broomstick placed across the backs of two chairs. The vessel containing clear juice which has dripped from the bag should be removed. A second vessel may be used to catch the juice when the bag is squeezed. This less-clear juice may be used for the making of "cloudy jelly."

Measure the juice and to it add three-fourths as much sugar. If you desire very sweet jelly, use equal parts of sugar and juice. A jelly made with three-fourths as much sugar as juice seems to hold its shape better than when equal parts of sugar and juice are used.

Cook sugar and juice together until a little dropped on a cold plate just holds it shape. In other words, when a few drops are rolled from the spoon onto the cold plate and allowed to stand away from the hot stove for a few moments, if the jelly is sufficiently cooked, the little sample does not run when the plate is tilted. If done, remove from the flame.

Dip glasses into boiling water, place a silver spoon in the glass and pour in the hot jelly until it comes to within a quarter of an inch of the top. When cold, melt paraffin wax in a small saucepan over hot water and pour it over the jelly.

When wax is hard, clean, cover, label and store away from the light.

For variety, currants may be cooked with equal parts of raspberries. Mint leaves may be cooked with apples. Or the cleaned leaf of a rose-geranium may be placed in the bottom of the glass before the jelly is poured in and removed when the leaf floats to the top.

Blouses for Mid-Summer

QUITE DIFFERENT FROM OTHER SEASONS

By Rita Stuyvesant

THE newest interpretation of the Summer blouse is really delightful, and nothing quite like it has been offered in many seasons. The hip-length slip-over blouses that the shops are showing so triumphantly have the grace to transform a white satin skirt into a smart costume. "For tea time wear at the club," which promises to be the popular recreation of the future, one may go on her way, assured that she is correctly attired if she completes her skirt with one of these gay little blouses.

Of coral-colored crepe de chine is an exquisitely dainty slip-over blouse that has bound itself in creamy white worsted and chosen a mandarin coat for its style. The lower edge is turned back into a cuff hem and held in place by self-colored buttons. The bell sleeves are also cuffed, but the novel feature is the worsted embroidery worked in half-inch blocks about the neck and sleeves. The alternate blocks are filled in with large cross stitch and the whole outlined to trace the design.

Jade green georgette made a distinctive blouse heavily beaded in shades of orchid. Following fashion's fancy the sleeves were cut in with the body and were elbow length. Folds of orchid georgette outlined the oval neck, sleeves and bottom and the blouse was girdled with a broad sash of georgette finished with bead tassels. Worn with a green baronet satin skirt, this blouse would complete a very fetching costume.

Of Dresden china daintiness was another blouse of flowered chiffon and shell pink taffeta. It hung on one piece from shoulders almost to the knees and was finished with a jagged edge that had a peculiar charm. The deep points were accentuated by bands of taffeta and so were the graceful flare sleeves.

Corn-flowered chiffon with turquoise blue taffeta makes an exquisite blouse and is splendidly girdled in silver rope.

Cream crepe, cross-barred in rose, fashions a long smock, split up the sides and scalloped in rose cotton. The scallops were repeated on a lovely sash that wound itself around the figure and draped at the knees in back and three tasseled with heavy rose silk. This sheer smock is also shown in many other other lovely colorings.

Household Suggestions

To strengthen stockings when knitting, take a reel of thread and knit with the wool for the heels and toes. They are just as comfortable and last three times as long as those done with the wool alone.

* * *

When working on silk, keep a piece of sandpaper on the table and rub your hands lightly over it when they stick to the thread.

* * *

To make glassware clear and sparkling, add a little washing blue to the soapsuds when washing.

For grit in the eye apply a drop or two of castor oil, it relieves the irritation.

* * *

When boiling a haddock fasten the head to the tail, add only sufficient water to cover, and boil slowly until cooked.

* * *

When cleansing pieces of silver with filigree work, apply the cleanser with a soft old brush and polish with a small piece of velvet carpeting. The pile of the carpeting sinks down among the chased work and cleanses and polishes it better than anything else without scratching or injuring the silver.

* * *

To clear beetles out of cupboards and larders, sprinkle a little benzine over the boards and it will kill the eggs as well as the insects.

To perfume linen, use rose leaves dried in the shade, or at about four feet from a stove, one handful; cloves, caraway seeds and allspice, of each one ounce; pound in a mortar or grind in a mill. Mix all these together and put the compound into little bags.

* * *

When about to roast a joint, cover it with a rind saved from a piece of ham or bacon and cook with it on. This will save the trouble of constant basting and will prevent the joint from burning or drying.

Economical Recipes

MEAT PANCAKE ROLLS.

One tablespoonful fat, two eggs, one-half onion, one-half cupful flour, one cupful cooked meat, one-half cupful milk, two tablespoonfuls gravy, one-half teaspoonful salt.

To make the filling, brown the onion chopped fine in the fat, add the meat coarsely chopped and the gravy. Cook together until warm and thick. For the pancake mixture beat the eggs until light, add the flour, salt and milk. Beat with an egg-beater. For pancakes use a very small frying pan, grease well, and pour in about two tablespoonfuls of batter, just enough to cover the bottom. When barely set (do not have too hot a heat), slide out of the pan on a plate of fine, dry crumbs. Put a tablespoonful of meat on the edge of the pancake (while hot) and roll up into a cylinder. Grease the pan each time and continue in like manner. These may be kept covered in the refrigerator for several days. When you wish to serve them, brown them in a frying pan.

PATTY PAN PIES.

Two cupfuls flour, 4 tablespoonfuls baking powder, 1 teaspoonful salt, 2 tablespoonfuls margarine, ¾ cupful milk, 2 cupfuls chopped roast lamb.

Sift together the dry ingredients, work in the shortening with the tips of the fingers or two knives. Add the milk until the mixture can be handled easily. Toss on a floured board and roll one-fourth inch thick. Cut into four-inch squares. Line greased muffin or patty tins. Fill with the meat moistened with gravy, or use left-over fish, egg, cheese, tomato or peanut butter combinations. Canned salmon or tuna with cream, minced vegetables, green tomato mincemeat, jam or marmalade are also good. Fold over the corners in envelope fashion, turning back the points in the centre. Brown well in a hot oven.

GREEN TOMATO SAUCE.

Into a saucepan of boiling salted water put six pounds of green tomatoes and cook slowly for twenty minutes. Take them out and peel and quarter them. Put them into a jar, with salt between each layer. Mix together three ounces of mustard, half a teaspoonful of allspice, one teaspoonful of pepper, a quarter of a pound of brown sugar, and moisten with a very little water. Then take as much vinegar as will cover the tomatoes; boil this alone, stir in the mixed spices and boil up again for a minute and pour all over the tomatoes. When cold, tie down. The sauce may be kept for use when desired.

How to Look and Feel Bright in Hot Weather

When depressed by the heat and you want to freshen up for the afternoon or evening, just bathe the face in a lotion made by dissolving an ounce of pure powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. You will find this more refreshing than an hour's rest.

As a wrinkle-remover the saxolite lotion is remarkably successful. Its action is almost magical. The deepest furrows, as well as the finest lines—whether due to age, illness, weather or worry—are immediately affected. Enlarged pores are reduced, flabby skin is "drawn in," facial contour is improved wonderfully. The simple ingredients, of course, can be had at any drugstore, and you need not hesitate to try the lotion, as it will not harm any skin in the least.

The Wallflower Girl

LET HER TRY TO BE MORE ADAPTABLE

Beatrice Fairfax Thinks It Is Largely Her Own Fault if a Young Lady Isn't Popular

By Beatrice Fairfax

WITHOUT fail a certain percentage of letters come to me each week signed "Wallflower." Sometimes, when despair goes even deeper, these communications are signed "Poison Ivy." Other pessimistic signatures are "Neglected," "Forsaken" and "Rejected"—all sing the same melancholy dirge, "He cometh not."

It seems that men are not interested in these girls, no one asks them to dance, no one invites them to the theatre, no one tells them they are beautiful, fascinating, the best company in the world, or that they are even "restful," which seems a very doubtful sort of compliment to me.

And they say, these girls who are "rejected of men," that they are just as good looking, just as attractive, just as clever as those more fortunate damsels whose path in life seems to be paved with chocolate creams and papered with theatre tickets.

Then they sit down and write and ask me to solve this awful conundrum. The world has been asking this very question since Eve ate the fateful apple one fine morning and found herself dispossessed in consequence. Why are some women magnetic and others not?

Berenice, the sister of Cleopatra, asked the same question, pondering dismally over the attractions of the family vampire for the crowned heads—not to mention her staggering popularity with the nobility, gentry and clergy of ancient Egypt, Asia and Africa—and no one could tell Berenice why Cleopatra got all the royal, military and ecclesiastical beaus, while she had to content herself with a relative or two.

It is the same today with Mayme and Irene as it was with Cleopatra and Berenice in Egypt two thousand years ago. Various esoteric religions attempt to explain the source of personal power, and do a good deal of talking about "prana." But I doubt if anyone really can tell why Julius Caesar and Marc Antony went mad over Cleopatra and neglected her sister, any more than they can diagnose today the charms of Mayme and the reason that her hat batrack is always full of men's hats, while Irene's never boasts a derby, a sailor nor a trench cap.

It is so, that's all, and it must be accepted just as the sea is the sea and mountains are mountains and one cannot be transformed into the other. A step in the right direction is to recognize the truth of this and then do what we can with the inevitable. Take stock of yourself, not jealously, bitterly or resentfully, but in a cold-blooded, businesslike manner.

Agree that like the heroine in the story of "The Sleeping Princess" perhaps there was an unfavorable fairy at your cradle who gave you a few handicaps in the way of a bad complexion, poor hair, dullness or indolence, then devote your God-given intelligence to fighting these handicaps.

If you have an unattractive skin, dieting, exercise and care will work wonders. If you have "stubborn" hair, don't do it up as if you had a grudge against yourself, or as if you dressed it with a monkey wrench instead of a comb. Go to the best hairdresser and let him or her experiment with your stubborn tresses over and over again until you hit on a becoming way of doing them.

Study your type and adopt your styles accordingly. If you are a little, short fat woman, don't have your clothes too tight-fitting. It gives you a sort of upholstered look that only adds to your stoutness. And if you are tall, don't stoop, it only makes you look taller.

Men are ultra-conservatives. They never like to be seen with a woman who appears conspicuous—unless she is conspicuous as a fashion plate. Half the young men you know would probably give a week's pay to walk down the street with Irene Castle or Joan Sawyer. But you could not hire them to be seen with Selma Lagerlof—the lady who took the Nobel prize for literature—if she happened to be a dowdy or frumpish.

Clothes and appearance are a tremendous asset, so is popularity. If you can muster a standing army of two or three at a dance, others will follow. I hate to say it, but men are a good deal like sheep—they follow each other.

Stomach is Quick to Upset When School Children Are Idle

VACATION days are days of over-eating and under-exercising for most boys and girls. They loll around nibbling at light food, unconcerned whether the fruit is green or ripe.

The result is cramps, skin eruptions, pimples, "summer colds," constipation and diarrhea. The basis of such trouble is an upset stomach, and nothing will give safer and quicker relief than the well-known Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is just a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin, a formula evolved some 30 years ago by Dr. Caldwell himself. Syrup Pepsin is now used by millions of people and is today the largest-selling liquid laxative in the world.

It is the mildest and gentlest of laxatives. It regulates the stomach and bowels so well that they can soon work normally again without the aid of medicine. And unlike the harsher physics and cathartics, Syrup Pepsin does not gripe or cause discomfort, even to a tiny baby.

A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can be bought at any drug store for 50c and $1, the latter the family size. A free trial bottle can be had by sending your address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 460 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

Why Automobiling Causes People to Lose Their Hair

More men and women are losing their hair today than ever before, and the cause is automobiling. They stir up a lot of dust, and in this dust are all sorts of microbes and germs which settle upon the hair and scalp, thus setting up a diseased condition that works its way down to the hair roots. Then the hair begins to fall out. There is only one remedy, and that is frequent washing with a neutral soap, combined with glycerin, cocoanut oil, white of eggs and salicylic acid. This is what Birt's Head Wash is made of. Ordinary soaps are positively injurious because they contain an excess of alkali, which has a deadly effect on the hair. Birt's Head Wash destroys germs and disagreeable odors, removes scales and dandruff, and leaves the scalp clean and the hair soft and glossy.

Stocks Weak; Break in Cotton; Call Rate 6 Per Cent. Copper at 24 Cents a Pound

PRICES RECEDE IN THE FIRST HOUR

Losses Range from Fractions to Eight Points at Lowest Level

By W. H. ROSS.
Financial Editor.

Stocks were weak in New York at noontime. There was a sharp break in prices during the first hour, and while the market rallied somewhat it failed to develop strength in any but a few spots.

Among issues to show the largest losses during the forenoon were Crucible, Bethlehem B, Baldwin, American Woolen common, Car & Foundry, American Smelting, Butte & Superior, Central Leather, Corn Products, General Motors, Inspiration, Kelly Springfield, Mexican Petroleum, Republic Steel, Texas Co., Tobacco Products, United Cigar Stores and Texas & Pacific. At their lowest they were off from two to four points.

Stocks to show gains at 12 o'clock included Studebaker, 1 at 113¾; American International, ½ at 111½; California Petroleum, 3 at 41; Cuba Cane, ¼ at 33¾; Missouri, Kansas & Texas, ¼ at 15⅜; General Cigar Stores, ⅞ at 91½, and Royal Dutch of New York, ¾ at 117¾.

Butte & Superior touched 26½, off eight points, at its lowest.

At noon U. S. Steel was off ¼ at 109¾. Its morning range had been from 109½ to 111½.

The call rate was 6 per cent. when the money market opened. Trading in stocks was active.

IRREGULAR AT OPENING.

Irregularity characterized the market at the opening, with gains and losses about equally balanced. The tone was rather firm for a few minutes, with advances the rule. The slight rise in price brought out considerable stock, and by the end of half an hour declines were the rule and the market had weakened. Atlantic Gulf, Mexican Petroleum, California Petroleum, General Motors, Northern Pacific, Studebaker, General Cigar and Midvale were strong at the outset, advancing from one to more than two points. Butte & Superior was particularly weak, opening off 4½ points at 30 and selling soon afterwards at 28. Buying orders did not accumulate over the two-day closing in as large a volume as has been usual on holiday periods recently.

NOT SO EAGER TO BUY.

The slackening of the demand for stocks on the part of the public was construed by bears to indicate a culmination of the bull movement. Bulls believe it to be only a lull. In some quarters it is claimed that the attitude of money powers in regard to speculation in stocks is having a restraining influence upon speculators and is going to be felt more and more until crops are moved and provision made for establishing the credits for European buyers necessary to obtain their trade. A disposition to realize profits quickly and be more conservative as to commitments was manifested when the exchanges reopened today.

NEW YORK BANK STATEMENT.

While not regarded as unfavorable in the main, the statement as to the condition of clearing house banks at the end of last week was somewhat disappointing. Surplus reserve decreased $6,881,060, and government deposits decreased $78,245,000. To some analysts of the statement the decrease of $78,708,000 in loans and the increase of $50,249,000 in net demand deposits indicated shifting of speculative accounts.

SAVINGS BANK DEPOSITS INCREASED DURING WAR

Although the American people invested so many billions of dollars in government bonds and war saving stamps during the war, they were thrifty enough also to add to savings bank deposits. Their record in this respect was remarkable when not only bond investments but the high cost of living is taken into consideration. Throughout the war period the total of savings bank deposits kept growing. In 1913 the total of such institutions in this country was $6,147,592,232, while in February last year the total was $7,727,000,971.

Institutions for savings in the State of New York now have more than 2,500,000 depositors. Their deposits exceed $2,000,000,000.

BANKER ALLAN FORBES APPOINTED TRUSTEE

Allan Forbes of Westwood, Boston banker, has been appointed trustee of a trust fund for the benefit of Susan H. Watson, and her son, Robert Clifford Watson, both of Milton, under the will of the late Robert Clifford Watson, whose estate comprises $90,000 in personal property and real estate of $2,600.

Cold Storage Stocks

If all the food in cold storage had to be marketed the high cost of living would slump. Illinois statistics show that foodstuffs in cold storage in Chicago, the chief center of the packers, on June 1 this year included $9,000,000 pounds of beef, 10,517,000 pounds of pork and 1,280,000 cases of eggs.

Picric Acid Plant Sold

The picric acid plant at Brunswick, Ga., has been sold to a holding corporation known as the Associated Manufacturers and Bankers in which Galen L. Stone of Boston is interested. An effort is to be made to induce manufacturers to locate on the property, and it is planned to make it the site of an industrial city.

Pig Iron Sales Increase

More pig iron is being marketed, contracts recently placed for deliveries during the first and second quarters of 1920 totalling several thousand tons.

Insect Bite Is Fatal

Bedford, Ind., July 21.—An insect which stung her on the lip while she was picnicking caused the death of Irene Kern, fourteen. She died two days later of blood poisoning.

ELEVATED SELLS HIGHER AT OPENING

Copper Metal Has Sold at Twenty-four Cents a Pound

At the opening the Boston market was steady, but it weakened with New York and reflected prices on the larger exchange during the morning. The strength of Boston Elevated was an early feature, it opening at 68¾ and selling at 69, up a point, soon afterwards.

Trading here was comparatively narrow and price changes averaged small. Among stocks to decline the most during the forenoon were North Butte, U. S. Smelting, New Haven and New England Telephone. They receded from one point to more than two, North Butte being the weakest.

Among issues to show small gains were Stewart, Ventura, United Shoe, Utah Consolidated and Hancock.

North Butte was especially active. Other issues prominent in this respect included Davis-Daly and Utah Consolidated. On one transaction United Drug second preferred advanced four points.

There was not much trading in coppers, although it was stated that one of the largest producers of red metal had sold substantial tonnage for September delivery at 24 cents a pound. A big export demand is looked for. It is stated that Germany will expend $200,000,000 in the American market for copper, if credit can be obtained.

EFFECT OF HIGHER FREIGHT ON CONSUMERS

Remonstrance against allowing railroads to advance freight rates is based largely upon its increasing the cost of products and adding to the burden upon consumers already staggering under the increased expense of living. But N. L. Amster says that even if the freight of the nation were carried free there would be little if any decline in the price of such common essentials as lard, pork, meat, textiles, chemicals and wearing apparel.

"It may sound strange," he said, "to claim that a 50 per cent increase in freight rates on lard, bacon or pork would add only one-half cent a pound on these commodities; or possibly three cents a day on what an average American family consumes, but it is a fact.

"Few people realize that an increase of 100 per cent, in freight rates would not amount to over twenty-five cents on a man's suit, five cents on a pair of shoes and one-fourth cent on a yard of cloth."

BIG LUMBER MOVEMENT STARTS FROM NORTHWEST

Seattle, Wash., July 21.—The greatest single lumber movement in the history of the fir industry is the movement of 45,000,000 feet of railroad ties from the Pacific Northwest to the United Kingdom, which started June 20 and will continue until early Fall. Thirty wooden vessels have now been placed in this service by the U. S. Shipping Board, twenty of which will carry 30,000,000 to 40,000,000 feet. The ties have been bought by British interests for reconstruction in England and other Western European countries. This order leaves the Shipping Board with but little idle wooden tonnage.

There is a general lumber famine in Australia, and it is said that more than 1,600 houses are standing in an unfinished condition.

FED $2,000 SAVINGS INTO MONEY MACHINE

Columbus, O., July 21.—Yose Contifentes, a cook, has been saving his money for years and had $2,000 saved up. He met Charles Landis, to whom he confided the facts regarding his finances. Landis was interested and told Yose he could make $10,000 out of his $2,000. Landis had a machine in his possession and told Yose to put in a $1 bill. Yose did and when Landis turned the crank a $20 bill came out. Yose was filled to overflowing with confidence when $200 had been "made." Then he invested his $2,000 with Landis and two other men. The two escaped. Landis is in jail and Yose is starting another savings account out of his wages.

Cost of Living in Canada

Living expenses in Canada used to be much lower than in this country, but since the war there is not so much difference. According to returns made to the Labor Department of the Dominion for June, this year, the average cost in sixty Canadian cities of twenty-nine staple foods was $13.77 at the middle of that month, compared with $13.58 in the middle of May, $12.79 in June, 1918, and $7.35 in June, 1914.

Republic Steel's Report

The report of the Republic Iron & Steel Company for the first half of 1919 was a disappointment. The corporation failed to earn its dividend on common stock for that period. First quarter earnings on that issue were 2.26 per cent, and for the second 0.27 per cent, or a total of 2.53 for six months. The dividend requirement is 3 per cent.

YOUTH IS INJURED BY FALL OFF CAR

Milford, July 21.—Francis Ober, twenty years old, of North Bellingham, is at Milford Hospital suffering from either a fractured skull or concussion of the brain as the result of falling from a car near Bellingham Four Corners while returning from Hoag Lake, where he had danced.

MRS. NELLIE H. BROOKS APPOINTED GUARDIAN

The Norfolk Probate Court has appointed Mrs. Nellie H. Brooks of Brookline, guardian of her daughter, Helen Brooks, a minor, whose interests in real and personal property aggregate $79,000. The mother was required to furnish a bond of $100,000.

JULY 28 WILL BE GRANGE DAY OF FARMERS' WEEK

Massachusetts Grangers are interested in the announcement that the opening day of the Summer Farmers' Week at Massachusetts Agricultural College in Amherst, July 28, will be State Grange day. The program has been somewhat revised. Among the speakers will be Master S. J. Lowell of the New York State Grange; Past Master Carlton D. Smith and Master Leslie R. Smith of the Massachusetts State Grange. July 29, the tobacco growers and Holstein breeders gather, Wednesday the poultry convention begins, Thursday the fruit growers, and Friday the market gardeners.

Fear a Coal Shortage

There is a growing fear at Pittsburg and other industrial centres that there will not be enough coal to answer the country's manufacturing needs. Bituminous output for the first half of 1919 is estimated to total approximately 220,361,000 net tons, or nearly 71,000,000 net tons less than production for the corresponding 1918 period.

Foreign Demand for Steel

In manufacturing circles it is estimated that ship construction in France and Italy should offer a market for as much as 1,000,000 tons of American steel. How much can be sold depends, however, upon credit arrangements. Developments are expected by autumn.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, July 21.—Opening prices on the Board of Trade were: Corn—September, 1.91¼ to 1.92½; December, 1.64 to 1.63. Oats—September, 82¼ to 81¾; December, 84¾ to 84.

New York Sub-Treasury Loss

New York, July 21.—The sub-treasury lost $501,000 to the banks on Saturday, reducing the cash net gain since Friday to $212,000.

American Zinc, Lead and Smelting Co

The Directors of the American Zinc, Lead & Smelting Company have declared a regular quarterly dividend of one dollar and fifty-cents ($1.50) per share on the preferred capital stock, payable August 1, 1919, to stockholders of record July 28, 1919.

F. W. BATCHELDER, Secretary.

GOLD HOLDINGS OF U. S. EXCEED 3 BILLIONS

Yellow Metal Hoard Increases After Export Ban Is Lifted

The United States not only has more gold than any other country, but since the ban on exports was lifted, on June 9 last by the Federal Reserve Board, its holdings have increased despite shipments of coin and bars to South America and Europe. It had $3,092,037,699 in gold on June 1 and, according to the latest Treasury Department statement, $3,095,077,467 on July 1. Exports of gold have been overbalanced by imports of the yellow metal.

Foreigners have had to buy so much in the United States that exchange rates have declined to low record quotations.

Since the ban on exports was lifted gold shipments to Europe, South America and the Orient have totalled about $93,000,000. From the start of the European war until this country lifted the embargo, this country gained more than $1,100,000,000 in gold. The increase this year is shown by the following statements of the United States Treasury as to holdings at the beginning of each month.

January	$3,080,510,011
February	3,085,459,209
March	3,084,213,002
April	3,092,415,909
May	3,092,430,918
June	3,092,037,699
July	3,095,077,467

While this country has been accumulating gold and permitting its exportation, there is a dearth in England and, according to a New York banker, "sterling exchange has begun to reflect more truly the premium which in reality exists on gold in London." It is difficult to measure the extent of this premium, owing to there being no free gold market in London, but the British government is said to have resorted to artificial measures to meet appearances and maintain currency notes at parity with gold.

HOME-CONCOCTED BREW HAD TERRIBLE WALLOP

Carmi, Ill., July 21.—A local resident has a new drink of such potency that the police, while not sure that there was alcohol in it, knew it had a tremendous kick, anyway, so they arrested the inventor.

So far as has been learned the man put a pot on to boil, making up four or five gallons at a time, enough for a day, if too much "company" did not call. The principal ingredients were corn meal, raisins, sugar and a certain kind of acid purchased at the drug stores. This boiled together, produced a concoction that would make Bacchus crazy. Those who know say one drink would make one talk Chinese fluently; after a second one could shave a grasshopper with a buzz saw, and with a third one could crack hickory nuts on the forehead.

NUPTIAL MASS AT WINTER HILL CHURCH

Miss Catherine A. Kelley, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Kelley of No. 67 Partridge avenue, Somerville, became the bride of Francis J. Daley today at a nuptial mass in St. Ann's Church, Winter Hill. The Rev. Francis J. Butler officiated.

Miss Margaret Kelley, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Harry J. Donnelly of Roxbury was best man. The ceremony was followed by a reception and wedding breakfast at the home of the bride. Mr. Daley's recent home was No. 121 Heath street, Somerville. He served in the navy during the war. He is prominent in Mount Benedict Council, K. of C. The bride is president of the Ladies' Sodality of St. Ann's Church. The couple will live at No. 21 Norwood avenue, Somerville.

WANT HIGH SCHOOLS TO TEACH PRINTING

St. Louis, Mo., July 21.—St. Louis employers are urging high schools to turn their attention to the printing business.

The Ben Franklin Club of this city, composed of employing printers and men in allied industries, has begun a movement to interest boys.

"The need for apprentices was never so urgent as now," says Oliver Wroughton, secretary of the Graphic Arts Association of Kansas City.

EVERYTHING FROM MILK TO BRICKS FOR THIEVES

Dayton, O., July 21.—Score another one for "variety." In one night the blotter at the Dayton police headquarters shows that thieves took everything from the family bottle of milk from the front doorstep to a load of bricks from the premises of a man who was building a new house.

ENGLAND HAS TOO MANY WOMEN

London, July 21.—The problem of providing means for caring within the British Empire for ex-service men who wish to migrate is receiving very serious consideration. Another grave problem is the disposition, satisfactory to all concerned, of England's large surplus of women.

WANT EVEN DISTRIBUTION.

The central and unchanging fact is the need to populate the Empire adequately throughout. The results of the war have but emphasized its urgency. In the year before the war there were 373 persons to a square mile in the United Kingdom, there were less than ten to the square mile in New Zealand, less than two in Canada and only about one and one-half in Australia.

But while the central fact does not change, the conditions surrounding it vary considerably from time to time. Migration to the Dominions from this country today, for instance, bears very little resemblance to that which took place in the days of early settlement.

Today the Dominions are highly developed self-governing nations, with policies and ideals of their own. They have their own immigration laws. They, and they alone, determine what shall be the composition of their population.

LAND VALUES JUMP.

Again, land values, especially since the discovery of the freezing industry, have increased by leaps and bounds in the Dominions, so that the man with small capital has no longer the same inducement to seek to better his position by going to the "Colonies" that he had formerly.

It will perhaps surprise many to learn that good agricultural land can be bought cheaper in many parts of this country than it can in New Zealand.

Some very apposite figures are embodied in the final report of the Dominions Royal Commission. Whereas in the period 1891-1900 only 28 per cent. went to the British Dominions and the remainder to foreign countries, principally the United States, in the period 1901-12 63 per cent. settled within the empire. In 1913 this proportion increased to 78 per cent. Emigration during the 40 years 1871-1911 absorbed only 27 per cent. of the natural increase of the male population. In the case of women it absorbed only 22 per cent of the total natural increase.

"UNDESIRABLE PROBLEMS."

In the forty years from 1871-1911 some 590,000 more males than females left England and Wales alone, and as the commissioners point out, "it is clear that such a condition of affairs creates undesirable problems both in the United Kingdom and the dominions."

Between 1870 and 1910 657,000 more boys than girls were born in England and Wales; during the same period 651,000 more males than females died. It follows that practically all the increase in the excess number of females over males at all ages in England and Wales between 1871 and 1911 was caused by the excess of male over female migration. This latter excess amounted to 590,000.

With regard to women, in 1911 there were in the United Kingdom 1,329,000 more females than males, and in the self-governing dominions 762,000 more males than females.

JAPANESE IMPORTS EXCEEDING EXPORTS

For the first five months of this year, the trade balance of Japan was adverse, imports exceeding exports by 19,933,743 yen, compared with an export balance of 55,543,213 yen for the corresponding 1918 period. A yen is equivalent to fifty cents.

Its principal imports this year have been raw cotton, oil cake, iron products, machinery and rice. Its chief exports have been raw silk, cotton tissues and cotton yarns.

WAR SUGAR DEMAND MADE CUBA PROSPEROUS

The war brought prosperity to Cuba. It made a market at high prices for all the raw sugar it could produce. Many planters became millionaires while others with small estates are now worth from $100,000 upward. High prices and an urgent demand for sugar may be expected for several years, or until the European beet sugar production becomes normal.

But the cost of living has increased as much in Cuba as elsewhere. This has made wages soar. Before the war a laborer was paid fifty cents a day. Now none gets less than $2.

Oil Refinery in Braintree

An oil refinery with daily capacity approximating 5,000 barrels, will be built in East Braintree, on the Weymouth-Fore River, by the Massachusetts Oil Refinery Company. It has bought a tract of about seventy-five acres. The crude oil will be supplied by the Island Oil & Transport Company tank ships, and the refinery's location gives it an outlet by rail and water. W. C. Robinson, one of the country's most prominent refiners, will be president of the new company. It has a West Virginia charter.

Extending New York Piers

New York will spend $90,000,000 to construct twelve ocean piers at Staten Island, which is significant of the growth of the sea trade of this country's greatest port. Fifteen million dollars will be expended on piers and $75,000,000 for land.

White North Butte Advanced

The advance last week in the market valuation of North Butte stock was due to reports that the Sarsfield crosscut on the eastern end of the property had reached highly mineralized ground. Most of the orders to buy came from the West.

COTTON SLUMPS SIX DOLLARS A BALE

New York, July 21.—A sensational break featured the cotton market this morning, prices dropping $6 a bale after opening steady, with August 5 points lower and other positions 10 to 24 points higher. Further rain over the belt, together with steady cables, furnished the buying incentive at the start, but Southern, Liverpool and local selling caused a break. Shorts were buyers, but offerings continued to increase and the market was soon flooded with what appeared to be general liquidation.

Opening prices were: July, 35.90; August, 35.55; October, 35.85; November, 35.90; December, 35.92; January, 35.65; March, 35.60; May, 35.66.

Let Us Accept the Advice of General Smuts

He Is the Only Man Who Has Come Out of the Peace Conference With a Reputation for Impartiality and a Courageous Sense of Justice

General Smuts, the South African soldier and statesman, a member of the British peace delegation and the real author of the League of Nations—the man who drafted it without its iniquitous vices and who signed it sadly—is the man whom intelligent and candid opinion in Europe considers to be the only real statesman that the war has produced. General Smuts delivered his farewell address last week to his British colleagues at Paris as he was about to depart for South Africa.

What General Smuts says is worth more to the world than the utterances of any other half dozen alleged statesmen, for he is the only man who has come out of the Peace Conference with a reputation for impartiality and a courageous sense of justice, retaining a poise that has given him vision to see in the future.

General Smuts tells his English colleagues that they should do justice to Ireland, as they have done it to Bohemia, and that they should stop meddling in Russia and allow the Russian people to work out their own salvation and to establish a kind of government they want, for that is of the essence of the principle of the right of self-determination. He says that "a sobered Soviet system may be better than barbarism, to which the present policy seems inevitably to be tending."

General Smuts urges reconciliation with the people of Germany as will encourage the "present moderate republican administration in Germany, which is successfully fighting the European battle against anarchy." General Smuts has read intelligently the history of the world. He knows how ephemeral and changing are the relations of the different nations to each other. He knows that today two nations are friendly and are fighting as allies another nation, and hating that other nation bitterly; that tomorrow these friends are enemies and those enemies are friends.

He knows that America has fought Great Britain twice, has been on the verge of fighting her four times, and has been her ally once; that in the same period America has fought France once, was on the verge of fighting her once, and has been her ally twice. He knows that England has fought France in the same period three times, has been on the verge of fighting her twice, and has been her ally twice; that she has been the ally of Germany three times and has been on the verge of fighting her twice; that she has been the ally of Austria three times, and fought her once; that she has been Russia's ally twice, has fought her twice, and has been on the verge of fighting her half a dozen times; that she has been Turkey's ally and protector four times, and has fought her once; that Austria has been the ally of France once, and has fought her four times; that she has been Italy's ally three times, and has fought her once; that she has been Germany's ally three times, and has fought her once; that she has been Russia's ally three times, has fought her once and has been on the verge of fighting her a dozen times. Germany has been England's ally three times, has fought her once, and has been on the verge of fighting her two times. It was England's faithlessness to her alliance with Germany a hundred years ago that made Frederick the Great dub her "perfidious Albion," a nickname so apt that it has clung to her ever since. Russia has fought France four times, and has been her ally twice; has fought Austria one time, has been her ally three times, and has been on the verge of fighting her twelve times; she has fought Japan once and been her ally once, all within fifteen years.

General Smuts knows that during those periods of enmity the opposing nations were made to hate one another and to believe that all the vice flesh is heir to is found in a particular nation that for the moment they are fighting or that they are about to fight, and that in a few years that nation which they hated, they are loving with the same zeal and ardor that they hated a few years before. General Smuts knows that Burke was right when he said that you cannot indict a whole nation; that there is very little difference between the virtues of whole peoples. The differences in their conduct flow from differences in circumstances which include the differences in the character of their leaders. It was the recognition of this fact which made President Wilson distinguish between the German people and the German government over which the people had no control.

Some day our statesmen will acquire the knowledge that the prize fighter long ago acquired, that hatred does not lend strength to the man or nation which hates in a battle; that failing to respect your enemies for the virtues they have does not increase your strength or weaken theirs, but does weaken your strength and increases theirs. No war was ever justified which has to be bolstered up by a propaganda of hate based upon the dissemination of lies concerning the people whom it is proposed to fight.

Let us then accept General Smuts' advice and in Lincoln's immortal words "With malice toward none—with charity for all," let us proceed to bind up the world's wounds, ceasing to have enemies and binding the whole world together in the friendly bonds of industry and commerce.

More Truth Than Poetry

HARDLY ANYTHING'S WRONG

By S. E. KISER

THERE isn't much the matter with the world,
So why should people worry or complain?
We are not, of course, as free as we think we ought to be,
But consider all the pleasures that remain!
If you've tried in vain to find a house to rent,
Do not grieve at all, but go and buy a tent;
Continue to be filled with merriment,
In spite of all the hardships and the pain.

WE may lose the things for which our fathers fought,
The profiteers may grant us little grace,
But, brother, let us not entertain the ugly thought
That the world has ceased to be a lovely place!
Why care if Britain tells us that she won?
If we lack the price of other kinds of fun
There's the never-failing fight in Washington:
Always let a smile illuminate your face.

THERE isn't much the matter with the world!
They are charging more for everything we buy;
But if meat and milk and ice have been raised beyond our price,
There is no charge for looking at the sky!
Heroic airmen fly across the sea,
The foe has had to beg on bended knee;
Why, then, should sadness come to you or me?
We may smile with sweet contentment, if we try.

IF the weak are paying tribute to the strong,
And the peace for which we've paid with blood and tears
Can't be coaxed to linger long, hardly anything is wrong;
So why should we give way to foolish fears?
We frequently have weather that is fair,
We can snicker at the skirts the women wear;
Let us turn away from every little care
And dance along together through the years.

ONCE UPON a time.
• • •
THERE WAS a boy.
• • •
AND LIKE most boys.
• • •
HE HAD a father.
• • •
AND HE had a mother.
• • •
AND HE went to school.
• • •
AND AS he grew up.
• • •
HIS TEACHER told him.
• • •
AND HIS father told him.
• • •
THAT HIS education.
• • •
WAS PROVIDED him.
• • •
SO HE could go out.
• • •
AND INTO the world.
• • •
AND EARN his living
• • •
AND HE was ambitious.
• • •
AND STUDIED hard.
• • •
AND GOT along well.
• • •
BUT ALL the time.
• • •
THEY TAUGHT him nothing.
• • •
ABOUT HOW to be happy.
• • •
AND WHEN he left school.
• • •
HIS ONE desire.
• • •
WAS JUST to earn money.
• • •
AND HE chose a business.
• • •
AND IN a little while.
• • •
WAS DOING so well.
• • •
THAT HIS father was pleased.
• • •
AND ALL of the neighbors.
• • •
POINTED TO him.
• • •
AS A bright young man.
• • •
AND YEARS went by.
• • •
AND HE built a fortune.
• • •
AND BECAME a power.
• • •
AND ALL the time.
• • •
HE WANTED more money.
• • •
AND KEPT raising the price.
• • •
OF THE thing he sold.
• • •
AND THE thing was food.
• • •
AND HIS fortune grew.
• • •
AND SOMEWHERE else.
• • •
WAS ANOTHER man.
• • •
WHO WORKED at a trade.
• • •
FOR A paltry wage.
• • •
AND THIS other man.
• • •
HAD A wife and child.
• • •
AND HE found it hard.
• • •
TO BUY the things.
• • •
THAT HIS child must have.
• • •
AND THERE came a day.
• • •
WHEN THE wealthy man.
• • •
RAISED THE price so high.
• • •
THAT THIS other man.
• • •
WITH HIS paltry means.
• • •
COULDN'T BUY the things.
• • •
THAT HIS child had had.
• • •
AND THE child grew weak.
• • •
AND A sickness came.
• • •
AND THERE was no strength.
• • •
TO FIGHT it through.
• • •
AND THE light grew low.
• • •
AND FLICKERED out.
• • •
AND SOMEWHERE else.
• • •
ON A great white book.
• • •
WHERE OUR deeds are marked.
• • •
BE THEY good or bad.
• • •
A HAND went down.
• • •
TILL IT came to the name.
• • •
OF THE wealthy man.
• • •
AND IT halted there.
• • •
AND WROTE a word.
• • •
AND THE word it wrote.

WAS "MURDERER."

I THANK you.

Here's Some Exercise for Your Imagination

Copyright, 1919, Star Company.

Henry Ward Beecher said that a soul without imagination was like an observatory without a telescope.

We all have imagination, as we all have speech and memory.

But either of these faculties, unexercised, unused, will lose its strength like the unused muscles of our bodies.

There are scores of cases where prisoners confined in solitary dungeons have forgotten how to talk.

Mme. Breshkovskaia, the Little Mother of Russia, who has just left this country to go back to her native land, forgot entirely how to speak during her long years of Siberian exile, but regained her speech when she was set at liberty.

Many persons say, "My memory is failing." It is just another way of saying, "I do not exercise my memory," for no memory, unless it be in old age, ever lessens in power if it is properly used.

Imagination is just as capable of training as speech and just as susceptible of development as memory.

You hear a little child say, "Let's play you are a bear." That is pure imagination. If her mind and hand should be trained she could make a picture of the bear she imagines.

The pictures of the great artists, the music of the great composers, often written without sounding a note on any instrument; the novels of the great writers, the theories of the great economists, are all the children of imagination.

The greatest imagination that ever existed was, of course, in the brain of Shakespeare.

Every character in the great series of plays that he wrote was to him a living, breathing human being.

If Shakespeare had chosen art instead of literature, he would have been among the greatest of the masters. If he had wished to be a statesman, he would have astounded the world with his theories and been decades ahead of his time.

Here is an easy way to exercise YOUR imagination.

Alongside this editorial is a series of pictures cut from illustrations in the August number of the Cosmopolitan Magazine.

Each one of them represents a hero or a heroine in a story in that very interesting and well-written magazine.

Now, which one of the pictures is of Cappy Ricks, the hero of Peter B. Kyne's new story of that famous character?

Which girl is the heroine of "Tannehill," by Louis Vance?

This one ought to be easy. Which one pictures the hero of Gouveneur Morris' stroy, "Some Boy"?

And which one of them goes by the name of "Firefly" in the story by James Curwood?

Without knowing whether it is the picture of a man or a woman, which one illustrates "Anybody's Man," by Frank R. Adams?

Which one of them represents Howard Chandler Christy's idea of the heroine of Samuel Merwin's "The Passionate Pilgrim?"

Perhaps you will say, "That's just guesswork." Maybe. But it's good guesswork. It will exercise a faculty which probably hasn't been wakened up for a week and which is so much the weaker for its lack of use.

Remember what happened to the man in the Bible who did not make use of the one talent that he had.

A live, active, well-directed imagination is a source of profit.

When you look at the Cosmopolitan Magazine to see how near right you were on the pictures you will see the work of great imaginations expressed in the best stories and the best illustrations, and representing more money than is paid by any other magazine in the world to its contributors.
